Prime Minister Arseniy Yatsenyuk with the support of the President Poroshenko banned overflights of Russian aircraft over the territory of Ukraine. How do EU member states perceive Russia's invasion of Ukraine, 04.11.2015

The Institute of World Policy on November 4 presented the results of unique survey on how the citizens of eight EU member states perceive Russia-Ukraine conflict.

Main findings of the poll were as follows: The pool of associations with Ukraine is dominated by negative images - the three key associations are war, Russia and poverty. Almost a third of EU citizens believe that Ukraine should be provided with EU membership in order to protect the country from further Russia's aggression. Citizens of France are the most skeptical towards Ukraine's European prospects, while the British are the most indifferent. Citizens of Spain, Italy, Poland, France, Germany, the United Kingdom, the Netherlands, and Sweden took part in the survey. The citizens of these EU states were asked to name three main associations with Ukraine and to list the arguments in favour and against Ukraine's membership in the EU. The survey is a continuation of the IWP's sociological research on the perceptions and attitudes of EU citizens towards Ukraine presented in June. The IWP then published the results of opinion polls on Ukraine in six most populated EU countries Spain, Italy, Poland, France, Germany, and the United Kingdom. Survey results to be released later today are expected to identify problems in the EU-Ukraine relations and to bring to light concerns of ordinary Europeans. The findings could be important in terms of Russia's powerful efforts to sow division among European nations fracturing their unity with respect to Ukraine.

Poll: Only 3% of Russians still consider Crimea belongs to Ukraine, 23.11.2015

As of November 2015, the 85% of Russian citizens believe that Crimea should be part of Russia, according to a survey by Levada Center, an independent Russian polling and sociological research organization. According to 52% of Russians, the expression 'Krymnash' ['Crimea is ours'] symbolizes celebration and pride due to the return of Crimea to Russia. At the same time, 16% of respondents believe that 'Krymnash' is a "symbol of Russia's revival," while 9% say it is a "symbol of victory over Ukrainian nationalists." Only 7% of respondents said that 'Krymnash' was a "meaningless expression," 5% said it was a "propaganda slogan," and another 10% couldn't answer the question. It is also worth emphasizing that only 3% of respondents believe that the peninsula should be part of Ukraine, 5% say that it must be an independent state and 87% believe that it should be part of the Russian Federation (about 6% couldn't answer). In August 2014, 73% of Russian respondents wanted Crimea to be part of Russia.

Ukraine, China Speak Out For Need to Reform Un Security Council, 01.07.2015

This was discussed at a meeting between First Deputy Foreign Minister of Ukraine Natalia Galibarenko and Special Envoy of the Chinese Ministry of Foreign Affairs for UN Security Council reform Gāo Yushēng. The sides also touched upon bilateral and multilateral cooperation, focusing on cooperation within the UN and other international organizations "In view of the celebration of the 70th anniversary of the Organization this year, the sides agreed that there is the need for making its work more efficient, including through the reform of the UN Security Council," the statement reads. According to Galibarenko, one of the signs that the UN Security Council needs to be reformed is the fact that it has failed to take effective measures to end Russian aggression against Ukraine, and Russia blatantly abuses its right of veto as a permanent member.

Poroshenko on Korban case: Ukraine should hear new names being made liable, 02.11.2015

"My reaction is absolutely simple. The first point is that some weeks ago when parliament was stripping the lawmakers facing charges of their immunity, I firmly promised that it was just the beginning, as the fight against corruption and the resolute processes of restoring lawfulness will go on. The second position – I emphasize and insist on that – an investigation should be as transparent as possible and there should be all the reasons for winning the public's trust, as the only ground for an investigation is a crime, the violation of laws against the state. This is inadmissible. The third point is that this won't stop at Korban, and neither the team of the new officials against whom cases should also be opened nor the old authorities where all who are guilty should bear responsibility will enjoy immunity from investigation, from being made liable for corruption-related crimes," he told Ukrainian TV channels in an interview broadcast on Sunday evening.

"I believe that this trend [dynamic and supportive relations as Ukraine have with the President Komorowski and government of Ewa Kopacz will continue with the change of the President of Poland and the change of the government. Kremlin warns against linking A321 crash in Egypt with Russia's operation in Syria, 03.11.2015

Presidential spokesman Dmitry Peskov has told the media: "Hypothetic insinuations on that score are inappropriate. Besides, these are absolutely different issues. There is no point in linking them," Peskov said, when asked if progress in Russia's operation in Syria might be affected if it was confirmed the plane had fallen victim to a terrorist attack. He also pointed out that for now there was not the slightest evidence indicating there was an act of terror.

U.S. Army Chief of Staff Gen. Milley: I See Russia as Aggressive, 04.11.2015

"The situation with Russia is, in my mind, serious and growing more serious. I see Russia as aggressive, not just assertive. They attacked Georgia, they illegally seized the Crimea, they have attacked Ukraine, all of those countries were free and independent and have been sovereign nations now for a quarter of a century, since the fall of the Berlin wall. So, that's not just assertive behavior that is aggressive," he said at the 3rd Annual Defense One Summit in Washington, DC, the United States. Answering a question from Jennifer Griffin, a Fox News national security correspondent, whether he considers Russia a greater threat to the United States than ISIS at the moment, Milley said that Russia is the number one threat to the United States.

"I said in testimony that I considered Russia the number one threat to the United States. The reason I said that was twofold: one is capability and the second is intent. In terms of capability, Russia is the only country on Earth that has the capability to destroy the United States of America. It is an existential threat by definition, because of their nuclear capabilities. Other countries have nuclear weapons, but none as many as Russia and none have the capability to destroy – literally destroy – the United States," he said.

On energy security, the two leaders discussed the need for energy diversification and full application of EU competition standards. Finally, the Vice President and President Juncker both underscored the importance of rapidly concluding a replacement to the Safe Harbor framework, which is vital to both the U.S. and European economies.

EU's Tusk says Russia does not abide by Minsk deal on Ukraine, 04.11.2015

Russia is not fully abiding by the terms of the Minsk peace deal for Ukraine and this will be taken into account by the European Union when it reviews its sanctions on Russia before the end of the year, the chairman of EU leaders said on Wednesday. It is "clear that the Minsk agreements (are) not yet fully implemented. This will need to be reflected in upcoming EU sanctions review," Donald Tusk said. EU nations agreed that economic sanctions on Russia would stay in place until a Minsk ceasefire deal in Ukraine is fully implemented. The Minsk agreement sets a deadline of the end of 2015 for Ukraine to regain full control over its eastern border. EU sanctions against Russia will expire on Jan. 31, 2016 if the 28 countries of the bloc do not agree on an extension. Tusk also rejected speculation that the EU could soften its sanctions on Russia in exchange for Russia's help in dealing with the Islamic State and the war in Syria. This "would not only be immoral but also ineffective," Tusk said.

Washington concerned about uptick in ceasefire violations in eastern Ukraine, 05.11.2015

"We are disturbed by an uptick in ceasefire violations in eastern Ukraine over the past two weeks," Kirby said. He stressed that the Russian-separatist forces had repeatedly attacked Ukrainian forces with small arms, grenade launchers, anti-aircraft weapons, and high-caliber machine guns. According to Kirby, these violations endanger the ceasefire and the Minsk Agreements implementation, being the right path to restore peace as the United States has said before. "We call on Russia and the separatists to end the violence and to live up to their Minsk commitments," the spokesperson for the U.S. Department of State said.

No grounds yet to name cause of Russian plane crash in Egypt, 05.11.2015

The Kremlin believes that any theories about what caused a Russian plane to crash in the Sinai Peninsula killing 224 people are speculation and that only the official investigation can determine what happened, Dmitry Peskov, a spokesman for President Vladimir Putin, said. The spokesman was reacting to an assertion from British Foreign Secretary Philip Hammond who said that there was a significant possibility that Islamic State's Egyptian affiliate had orchestrated a bomb attack on the Russian airliner. "We have said this before and we will repeat it again: theories about what happened and the causes of the incident can only be pronounced by the investigation," said Peskov, when asked about Hammond's comments. "So far, we have heard nothing (like this) from the investigation. Any kind of similar assumptions like this are based on information that has not been checked or are speculation."

Steven Fisher says 'Ukraine is, was and will be the breadbasket of Europe, 05.11.2015

Everyone knows the agro culture sector is performing at one third of the efficiency level of the entire United States of Western Europe; that by itself means there is great potential for increasing productivity and therefore investment in the sector, said Fisher.

"Ukraine is, was and will be the breadbasket of Europe and therefore foreign investment can play a very large role in realizing those possibilities," he said. Fisher went on to say that gas and oil exploration and production is another area of great possibility for future foreign direct investment. He named low labor cost another feature worth noting, as seen with the decline of the hryvnia. Therefore, the country may attract global hubs in the near future, Fisher believes. The pace of Ukraine's reforms and fight with corruption were also discussed.

Lavrov Says Ukraine's Minsk Deadlines Should Be Extended Into 2016, 06.11.2015

Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov says it is clear that deadlines on political reforms in Ukraine under the Minsk agreements need to be extended into 2016.

Lavrov issued the statement after meeting in Berlin on November 6 with the foreign ministers of Germany, France, and Ukraine to discuss the next steps toward ending Ukraine's conflict. The meeting took place amid a growing awareness that progress on a peace plan has been slower than hoped for in the conflict between Ukrainian government forces and Russian-backed separatists in eastern Ukraine, which has killed more than 7,900 people since April 2014. The conflict also has soured relations between Russia and the West, which accuses the Kremlin of playing a direct military role in the conflict. Russia continues to deny that it is sending its troops and weaponry into eastern Ukraine, despite growing evidence to the contrary.

Best way to hold fair elections in East Ukraine is to withdraw Russian troops – Yatsenyuk, 06.11.2015

"This is a very fragile ceasefire. Once again, if we go back to the Minsk deal, we are ready to hold free and fair elections in Donetsk and Luhansk. But these elections are to meet all due and received criteria and Ukrainian legislation. And the best way to hold free and fair elections is just to withdraw Russians, to pull back all Russian forces. Because we can't get any kind of free and fair elections under the barrel of Russian gun, you know? So, the ceasefire is not the implementation of the Minsk deal. The ceasefire is just a precondition for full implementation of the Minsk deal. So, it's still fragile," Ukraine's Prime Minister Arseniy Yatsenyuk said, alleging he had received a report on Thursday from Ukraine's Department of Defense about 12 shelling incidents.

Ukraine counts on Europe's support to restore Donbas, 07.11.2015

"It is clear that there will be some internal state programs and local taxes. However, we must also rely on the assistance of our European partners. We had to make serious compromises to achieve peace. Therefore, we need specific guarantees of assistance for the restoration of these territories," he said. Groyzman expressed confidence that "with the help of our partners and allies, we will achieve the implementation of the agreements by our opponents." "They will have to withdraw their troops and militants, as well as to open territory for Ukrainian laws and elections. We will overcome this hard way," he said.

Poroshenko convinced control over Crimea will be returned to Ukraine, 07.11.2015

Poroshenko went on to compare last year's Russian annexation of Crimea to the Nazi takeover of Austria in 1938. "The situation in Crimea is a complete Anschluss, is an annexation of the sovereign Ukrainian territory, is a brutal violation of international law. At the end of the day, international law and order should be restored," he said, when talking with a reporter from the Conflict Zone program. Poroshenko said the only possible guarantee of security for Ukraine is NATO membership. He is convinced that Kyiv will be able to fulfill the requirements for membership in 6-8 years. Speaking about the settlement of the conflict in Donbas, the Ukrainian president assured that Kyiv fulfills all the requirements of the Minsk accords on time.

Law on Donbas special status should enter into force on election day — German FM, 10.11.2015

Steinmeier said the "Normandy Quartet" agreed that "on the day of election in Ukraine's east the law on special status will enter into force on preliminary basis." If OSCE (Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe) observers confirm that election was held without violations, the law "will enter into force on permanent basis," the foreign minister added. Law on Donbas special status is envisaged by the Minsk accords signed on February 12, after negotiations in the so-called "Normandy format" in the Belarusian capital Minsk, bringing together Russian President Vladimir Putin, French President Francois Hollande, German Chancellor Angela Merkel and Ukrainian President Petro Poroshenko.

Poroshenko says Ukrainian troops allowed to return fire if attacked, 12.11.2015

"These attempts to disrupt the Minsk agreement – not only by provoking the Ukrainian military with subversive activity, not just by shelling our territory with the use of the weapons that should have been withdrawn long ago, not just by barring the OSCE Special Monitoring Mission from visiting observation posts and weapon storage locations and by denying access to the non-controlled section of the Ukrainian-Russian border – demonstrate that risks and threats to national security, sovereignty, territorial integrity and independence of Ukraine remain considerable," the president said at a meeting of the National Security and Defense Council in Kyiv on Wednesday. "The Ukrainian servicemen have a firm order to fight back the enemy in case of a threat to their life amid attacks. We will not let the enemy take us by surprise," he added. At the same time, Poroshenko stressed that those were only defensive actions. Despite provocations by pro-Russian militants, Ukraine strictly abides by the agreements for the sake of the establishment of peace.

President: Those who committed crimes against Maidan must be punished, 12.11.2015

The President emphasized the importance of accelerating the investigation of all crimes against protesters on Maidan and urged the investigative bodies to intensify their work. "We have no right to delay this issue. No death should remain without responsibility of those who committed and organized these crimes," Petro Poroshenko said. The Head of State is confident that the fact that the suspects in these crimes are fugitives doesn't prevent their conviction and prosecution. "The Law initiated by me provides grounds for the adjudication in absentia," the President emphasized. He reminded that Ukraine had filed an appeal to the International Criminal Court in Hague for the former leaders of the country led by Yanukovich to be punished under the international law.

NO SUSTAINABLE CEASEFIRE IN DONBAS – KLIMKIN TELLS, 13.11.2015

"We did not have any sustainable ceasefire. It was a very fragile process and we still have no confidence in the process, without full access to Donbas. Taking into account everyday cases about hidden weapons, including heavy weapons and tanks, and taking into account all kind of data about movements of the forces in Donbas, we can't talk about any real ceasefire," he said in an exclusive interview on Ukraine Today's Viewpoint. Klimkin pledged to keep informed all his foreign friends and peers about ongoing events, "because now the whole Minsk process, especially the withdrawal of weapons, is definitely jeopardized." "And we have to talk about it in a very straight forward way," he added.

Ukraine's PM accuses Russia of promoting global terrorism, 15.11.2015

"It's time where it can be no half-truth. Terror is the same in all forms: against human life, against the independence of other nations, and against the basic principles of civilized international coexistence," he said. Yatsenyuk has no doubt that the violation of guarantees of security of the state, which gave up its nuclear weapons, the annexation of Crimea, the occupation of Donbas, threats of using force by the Kremlin promote global terrorism. The collective response of humanity must be clear and precise, he stressed.

Poroshenko: Combat readiness raised amid escalation in Donbas, 15.11.2015

"We do see a solid demonstration of the escalation of the situation in the east. The number of attacks has increased, and our response was instantaneous. I have given a very clear order, that, when facing a threat to the life of the Ukrainian military, our soldiers, our heroes, the Ukrainian military have the right to return fire. And this had corresponding results: four sabotage and reconnaissance groups of militants were terminated, one of which came 80 meters close to our observation post. And our military were absolutely professional, they let them get close (it was the nighttime, but they [the Ukrainian troops] were equipped with thermal imagers), responded, and the sabotage and reconnaissance group was terminated," said Poroshenko.

Russia plans a 'hybrid warfare' campaign aimed at destabilizing Europe, says Bulgarian President, 16.11.2015

Russia has trained its sights on the Balkans to wage a "hybrid warfare" campaign aimed at destabilizing the whole of Europe, the President of Bulgaria has warned. He demands that the EU and Nato do more to counter the rising threat of Russian aggression.

Rosen Plevneliev accuses Moscow of launching massive cyber attacks on Bulgaria's government institutions and increasingly testing Bulgaria's airspace in the wake of the annexation last year of Crimea, on the other side of the Black Sea. "The very efficient and secure way for Russia to destabilize Europe is through the Balkans, so that is what Mr Putin is focusing on," - "Our message to the EU, the Secretary General of Nato, our partners and Western allies is that the Balkans should be in the very heart of European security policy. Do more for us in order to do more for yourselves." The Bulgarian President's comments came after he attended a Nato summit of nine Eastern European member states in the Romanian capital Bucharest on Wednesday, at which leaders expressed concerns that the "security environment was deteriorating" as a result of Russia's "aggressive and unpredictable" behaviour.

Russia is ready to restructure "Yanukovich's debt", 16.11.2015

Russia is prepared to take $1 billion per year from 2016 through 2018 from Ukraine, and to defer any payment this year, Putin told reporters at a news conference at the G-20 summit in Antalya, Turkey, on Monday. Russia proposed "better" terms for restructuring to Ukraine than the International Monetary Fund was seeking, Putin said. The proposal comes after months of Russian refusal to participate in restructuring talks over Ukraine's debt, which comes due in December. Russia said the $3 billion bond is sovereign debt and not subject to the same restructuring talks as those Ukraine conducted with commercial lenders. Russia purchased the bonds in 2013 as part of a promised $15 billion in aid after Ukraine's then-president Viktor Yanukovich rejected an association agreement with the European Union in favor of closer ties with its neighbor to the east. Russia is waiting for guarantees from the U.S., the EU or international financial organizations on Ukraine's debt repayment, Putin said.

Ukraine's Acting Ambassador to NATO: Russia's actions see no understanding at NATO HQ, 16.11.2015

"The general atmosphere, which I observe at NATO Headquarters, is that there is an absolute, complete misunderstanding of the actions of the Russian side, their non-recognition and rejection," said Bozhok. At the same time, he said that the Russian diplomats avoid contacts with their Ukrainian counterparts at the Headquarters.

"There are no contacts as of today, because Russian colleagues simply avoid such contacts," he said. The diplomat believes that his "Russian colleagues simply have nothing to say to us (because we clearly understand what happened), so it makes no sense to impose their propaganda on us, the Ukrainians, who know the truth."

Steinmeier: Russia focusing efforts in Syria, taking attention away from Ukraine, 16.11.2015

"Russia triggered the whole conflict. And for the long time they ensured that we would not make a millimeter of progress. At the last negotiations in Berlin and Paris we saw a movement towards making more progress. But that's because Russia's priorities have moved, said Steinmeier. "They are now much more interested in a military build-up in Syria. So they are may be focusing on their efforts in Syria and taking their attention away somewhat from the Ukrainian conflict," he said. He noted that "whatever the reason of this may be, the last meetings with Ukraine and Russia have been much more constructive than the previous meetings. The unilateral local elections on the part of the separatists have thankfully been postponed. Because, if it had happened, the Minsk process would have slipped from our hands entirely. So, we're going to continue working on trying to keep this process up and running."

George Soros: the country will follow Poroshenko the moment he reaffirms "commitment to new Ukraine", 17.11.2015

On 14 November 2015 the billionaire and philanthropist George Soros delivered a speech at the 25th Anniversary Dinner for the International Renaissance Foundation, part of the Open Society Foundations network, which he established to help post-soviet countries move away from communism. The new Ukraine aspires to be the exact opposite of the old Ukraine. In the old Ukraine the economy was dominated by oligarchs and a civil service that exploited the people rather than serving them. Freedoms granted by Ukraine's national independence did not guarantee basic human rights. Freedom of speech was confined by censorship and "temnik" and civil society activists faced real dangers. The new Ukraine is determined to undertake radical and painful political and economic reforms that will correct these defects. To be realistic, that is a noble objective but not an attainable one. Psychoanalysts have a technical term, they call it "a fantastic object", an ideal that inspires people but reality can never live up to it. The new Ukraine grew out of many years of civic activism that the foundation did support, and it was finally brought into existence by the heroic defenders of the Maidan who were willing to sacrifice their lives for a better future for their country. Contrary to what the Russian propaganda machine says, the foundation did not finance Maidan, although it did provide legal and medical assistance to the people who were fighting there and then sought to keep the spirit of Maidan alive by converting a revolution into a constructive, nation building activity – and that is the source of my pride and joy.

Justin Trudeau tells Russia's Putin to end 'interference' in Ukraine, 17.11.2015

Prime Minister Justin Trudeau delivered a blunt message during a brief chat with Russian President Vladimir Putin: back off Ukraine. Trudeau said the two leaders had a brief conversation on the sidelines of the G20 summit in Antalya, Turkey. "I pointed out that although Canada has shifted its approach on a broad range of multilateral and international issues, we remain committed to the fact that Russia's interference in Ukraine must cease; that we stand with the Ukrainian people and expect the president to engage fully in the Minsk peace process," he said. Putin's relations with Western leaders have deteriorated over Russia's backing of pro-Moscow rebels in Ukraine. Trudeau's stand continues Canada's position under former prime minister Stephen Harper, a staunch supporter of Ukraine and one of Putin's most vocal critics

At the same time, he pointed out that Russia had been provoking and initiating global destabilization. Eastern Europe warns West not to ignore Russia's ongoing war in Ukraine, 19.11.2015

Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania along with Poland are warning of Russian backsliding on implementing the Ukrainian ceasefire deal agreed in February. The Baltics all have ethnic Russian minorities and were unnerved when Putin declared last year that Moscow had the right to intervene with military force if necessary to protect Russian speakers abroad. Frequent Russian air incursions near Baltic airspace have added to jitters. "There cannot be bargaining over compliance of the (ceasefire) conditions," Estonian Prime Minister Taavi Roivas has said, insisting the deal must be fulfilled to the last letter. "Cooperation elsewhere does not mean for Europe concessions in its neighbourhood," he told parliament on Tuesday. But the Paris attacks and last month's downing of a Russian airliner over Egypt, both claimed by Islamic State, have created a sense that Western capitals and Moscow have a common interest in battling the militants.

Western leaders agreed to extend Russia sanctions by six months: diplomat, 21.11.2015

Western leaders who met on the margins of last week's Group of 20 summit in Turkey agreed to extend sanctions imposed on Russia for its intervention in Ukraine by six months until July of next year, a senior European diplomat told Reuters.

The decision was taken despite mounting calls to cooperate more closely with Russian President Vladimir Putin in the fight against Islamic State following the militant group's Nov. 13 attacks in Paris which killed 130 people. U.S. President Barack Obama, Germany's Angela Merkel, Britain's David Cameron, Italy's Matteo Renzi and French Foreign Minister Laurent Fabius, who represented President Francois Hollande at the summit, attended the brief meeting near the conclusion of the G20 meeting in Antalya.

The sanctions are due to expire in January, before full implementation of the so-called Minsk peace deal, which aims to resolve the standoff between Kiev and pro-Russian separatists in eastern Ukraine.

When we were discussing this at the council of ministers of the European Union I also said that it is a big drama, but in Ukraine at that time almost the same number of people was killed almost every day. Our military would act similarly to Turkish in case airspace is violated, NSDC Secretary Turchynov says, 24.11.2015

Turkey air forces and air defense acted professionally and in the manner any civilized country's relevant units should act if a country's sovereign territory is violated by military jets of another country. This was announced by National Security and Defense Council Secretary Oleksandr Turchynov. "Prior to opening the fire, the Turkish side has warned Russia many times against its airspace violation by military jets of the Russian Federation air forces. Several more warnings have been made before firing, and only after that was the Russian plane attacked," he said, adding that Turkish military were fulfilling their duty to their country's airspace and their people's security. Turchynov believes that if Ukrainian airspace is violated by war planes, "Ukrainian military shall act in similar manner to protect our country from the aerial aggression."

Ankara causes worsening of Russia-NATO relations — Russian PM, 25.11.2015

Russian Prime Minister Dmitry Medvedev said on Wednesday that Turkey's actions to down the Russian Air Force Sukhoi Su-24 plane in Syria were criminal. The prime minister commented to reporters on the events on arrival in Yekaterinburg, after a many-day tour of Southeast Asia. "The recklessly criminal actions of the Turkish authorities that downed Russia's aircraft have three consequences," he said. "First — it's the dangerous worsening of relations between Russia and NATO, which cannot be justified by any interests, including protection of the state borders. Second — Turkey has demonstrated by its actions, in fact, the protection of the militants of the Islamic State (IS) terrorist group. That is not surprising, taking into account the available information about the direct financial interest of some Turkish officials linked with the supply of petroleum products produced at enterprises held by IS."

Putin Says Ukraine's Stance on Crimean 'Energy Blockade' Surprising, 25.11.2015

Some 2.5 million Crimeans were left without electricity over the weekend when explosions downed several transmission towers in southern Ukraine, according to Russia's Emergencies Ministry. "These problems will be overcome. The position of our partners from Kiev is the only thing that surprises us, without their silent approval these events could not have taken place — this is obvious and understandable," Putin said at the State Council meeting. The Russian president explained that Ukrainian partners were talking about "the need of Crimea's accession to Ukraine and were tormenting people". Putin stated the necessity of ensuring non-stop provisional power generator operation on the Crimean Peninsula. Following the electricity blackout, Crimea declared a state of emergency and switched to locally-based emergency power generation. Medical and other crucial elements of the social infrastructure are on backup power.

Russia planning no war with Turkey — FM, 25.11.2015

The minister said the Russian side has always tried to "organize practical and pragmatic relations with our Turkish neighbors, including in the context of the Syrian crisis, especially now that we started the Aerospace Forces' operation in the Syrian Arab Republic on a request from official Damascus." "The president specially underscored yesterday that we have always tried to treat the regional interests of our neighbors with respect, including Turkey's regional interests," Lavrov said. "Now probably many things of what we are saying now should not be a secret, regarding how terrorists use Turkish territory to prepare their operations in Syria, to prepare terrorist acts in different countries, regarding efforts or lack of efforts on the part of official authorities to fight that," he said.

Power supply to Crimea to be restored after Russia releases at least one political prisoner, - Dzhemilev, 26.11.2015

MP and one of the initiators to the 'civil blockade' of Crimea Mustafa Dzhemilev announced in Kyiv that power supply to the peninsula would be restored partially in three days. However, next day the leader of the protesters, Lenur Isliamov, said to the medium that journalists got Dzhemilev's words wrong. "We have allowed restoring the power pylon, but we are not connecting the line itself. Because if the Russian side, the occupational authorities allow releasing prisoners, at least one of our political prisoners, we will have an option to connect it. This was our demonstration," Isliamov said. "They ought to make some conciliatory steps. I think they should release Akhtem Ciygoz, some key figures first of all. But they are doing none of it. So there's this pressure by the society, why the hell should be turn the light on for them," Dzhemilev said to the medium. According to the deputy, Ukrainian authorities insist that power supplies to Crimea are restored, for agreements between Kyiv and Moscow provide for large fines by Ukraine to Russia in cases of disruption. However, Dzhemilev insists, the Crimean Tatars believe that the energy blockade should continue. "The command post said to cut lines as of now. "As long as there is no command from Kyiv, we will not let you connect it." This is the situation as of now, and we'll see what it's like tomorrow," Dzhemilev said.

Russia sanctions could end if it meets Ukraine pledges: French PM, 26.11.2015

France said sanctions against Russia could be lifted if Moscow fulfils its pledges to bring peace to Ukraine, hours after Kiev closed its airspace to its neighbour's airlines and Russia said it would stop delivering gas. Speaking on the eve of talks between the French and Russian presidents, French Prime Minister Manuel Valls gave his clearest indication yet the punishing travel and financial restrictions placed on Russia over its role in eastern Ukraine could end. "We hope that sanctions against Russia may be lifted, but it must fulfil its part of the contract... which it signed in the context of the Minsk accords," Valls said. "We are conscious of the role and place of Russia in the world, in Europe and in our relationship, which is historic." Europe and the US have slapped sanctions on Moscow for stoking the Ukraine conflict, accusing the Russian government of orchestrating and supporting the pro-Russian revolt in the east of the country -- charges it denies.

Ukraine PM promises a new cabinet, 03.11.2015

Ukraine's Prime Minister Arseniy Yatsenyuk has pledged to bring in a new cabinet after his Western-friendly coalition suffered a resounding defeat to the parties of oligarchs and Russian sympathizers at local elections last week. "There have been mistakes," Yatsenyuk admitted during an interview in his Soviet-era cabinet offices. "But I will correct these mistakes with new folks sitting in the cabinet." Ministers from energy, healthcare, and education will be gone within two weeks, the prime minister said, and there will be a new deputy prime minister for European integration. But the replacements tasked with resuscitating Ukraine's European dream have yet to be agreed with President Petro Poroshenko. "It's too early to say who, this could shatter the coalition," he explained, revealing the fragile nature of the four-party pact that keeps his government afloat. "We are in talks with the president. But the quicker we announce the better."

Ukraine's ex-justice minister Lukash arrested on corruption charges, 06.11.2015

A Ukrainian court on November 6 ordered the arrest of former Justice Minister Olena Lukash on corruption charges, a day after she was detained in connection with an investigation into deadly Maidan shootings of February 2014. The charges against Lukash include misappropriation of state funds worth about $2.5 million, as well as forgery and abuse of her office. The November 6 arrest order by Kyiv's Pechersky District Court granted her the possibility of paying bail of 5.1 million hryvni ($221,000) within the next five days. Prosecutor Vladislav Kutsenko says Lukash was not being charged in connection with the Maidan shootings during opposition protests in 2014 that brought down the pro-Russian government of then-President Viktor Yanukovich.

However, Kutsenko said Lukash was being questioned as a witness in that case.

Korban placed under house arrest for two months, 06.11.2015

The court has held that Korban must hand over his ID, including the travel passport, and wear an electronic bracelet. Meanwhile, Korban's lawyer Oksana Tomchuk said the defense will appeal the decision. She also noted that the leader of Ukrop party will remain under house arrest in his house in Dnipropetrovsk 24/7. The prosecution reportedly requested to remand Korban into custody without the right to bail. The prosecutor has explained the request with an assumption that Korban may hide from the investigation, put pressure on witnesses, and commit criminal offenses. Korban's defense appealed to postpone the hearing due to lateness of the hour, but the prosecutors have accused lawyers of dragging out the trial, as the 72-hour term to impose a pretrial restriction would have ended at 8:40 a.m. on Nov. 6.

Yarosh steps down as leader of Right Sector – claims lack of authority, 11.11.2015

"I have to say no to the offer of the [movement's] conference to lead the organization and step down from post of the leader of the Right Sector national liberation movement, remaining a nationalist, a statist and a revolutionary," Yarosh wrote. He explained his move with the fact that his position is not always in line with aspirations of part of the Right Sector's leadership. Read also Right Sector preparing for no-confidence vote against government – Stratfor "I was wounded and required a long period for treatment, I entrusted some areas of the movement's activities to my closest associates who have had and still have their own perspective for the development of the nationalist movement. My own position does not always coincide with the aspirations of part of the leadership. As a leader, I am personally responsible for everything that happens within the organization, and do not intend to put it onto someone else's shoulders. That is why I can't be a leader without authority in the Right Sector," he said.

In Kyiv, OSCE PA President discusses Minsk implementation, reform process with Parliament Chairman Groysman, 11.11.2015

OSCE Parliamentary Assembly President Ilkka Kanerva (MP, Finland) met today in Kyiv with Verkhovna Rada (Parliament) Chairman Volodymyr Groysman and parliamentarians from the Ukrainian Delegation to the Assembly for discussions that focused on the status of implementation of the Minsk Agreements and the country's ongoing reform process. "It is not just the security of Ukraine, but the security of Europe and the wider OSCE area which remains at stake in this conflict. Russia's breach of international norms has brought us to this point, but we must now focus on accelerating the mutually agreed steps to getting us out. The ceasefire is not total, but the situation is better than it has been, and this presents a vital opportunity for progress," President Kanerva said. "In my meetings today there was consensus that the withdrawal of heavy weapons in the east must happen as soon as possible. That step is clearly needed to improve the humanitarian situation and to allow for safe, legitimate elections in the temporarily occupied areas. "The issue of Ukraine's eastern border is also critical. Until the country regains full control of that border I am concerned that weapons and personnel may continue to flow in. I believe that OSCE monitors should be enabled to fully observe and help stabilize the situation along the full length of the border," he said. President Kanerva also underscored the importance of the Ukrainian government's reform initiatives and urged further efforts, particularly to combat corruption and to address the issue of decentralization.

It's not a question of the damaged power lines, but it is a question of our position," Avakov said. Avakov also said that the repair works could be carried out only at one of the damaged power transmission lines in Kherson region, namely at a 220 kV Kakhovka-Tytan power transmission line, where the law enforcement officers had conducted mine clearance. OSCE reports rise in truce violations along Ukraine front lines, 05.11.2015

International monitors in eastern Ukraine have reported a sharp increase in gunfire along front lines near the airport of the rebel-held city of Donetsk, a senior official with Europe's main security and rights watchdog said on Thursday. The guns have been mostly silent since early September, prompting both sides to extend a pullback of lighter weapons, but recent accusations of ceasefire violations from both sides have underscored the fragility of the peace process. Renewed violence would also make it less likely that the European Union lifts sanctions against Russia based on a review before the end of the year, though Russia has repeatedly denied it is backing the rebels in east Ukraine. "Since Sunday, monitors noted a noticeable increase in violence in and around Donetsk airport, none of which we can attribute to demining or training," Alexander Hug, deputy chief monitor to the OSCE mission in Ukraine.

In “DPR”-controlled Staromykhailivka (16km west of Donetsk), the SMM heard outgoing small-arms fire and then observed anti-aircraft fire impact a building 200m from the SMM’s position. At the same time, in nearby government-controlled Krasnohorivka (21km west of Donetsk), the SMM saw two anti-aircraft guns (ZSU 23). In government-controlled Krasnohorivka (21km west of Donetsk), the SMM found remnants of an 82mm mortar round and a fresh crater. Crater analysis carried out by the SMM showed the mortar was fired from the east. At a second location, the SMM was shown remnants of a BM-21 Grad rocket (assessed as unexploded), which the Ukrainian Armed Forces said had been fired the previous night. The SMM observed no evidence of impact or damage caused by the rocket.

500 people headed to Akhmetov's office after rally on Maidan in Kyiv, 22.11.2015

About 500 people gathered on Maidan Square for a rally on Sunday afternoon. Most of the speakers criticized the government for inaction in countering Russian aggression in the east of Ukraine and the annexation of Crimea, as well as for failure to meet the pre-election promises. In particular, the protesters believe that the authorities simulate implementation of the declared reforms in the country, while using the old corruption schemes in fact. After the rally ended, the protesters went to the office of the SKM holding controlled by oligarch Rinat Akhmetov.

Pro-Russian German MPs pay another visit to Donbas militants, 24.11.2015

Two German MPs have yet again visited areas under Kremlin-backed militant control, providing both aid in the form of medication and dollops of pro-Russian, anti-Ukrainian propaganda. Their visit coincided with the 45th Russian humanitarian convoy to have entered and left Ukraine without permission or proper checks of what they are carrying. Neither the German MPs, nor Russia have expressed any criticism of the so-called 'DNR' and 'LNR' who over the last months have expelled western NGOs, thus stopping them from bringing critically needed aid to Donbas. In fact, the 'social disorientation' which the Kremlin's proxies claimed they were seeking to prevent by expelling western aid organizations appears to be ideological. It is Russia and its allies, including German deputies from the left-wing, who are presented as tackling the mounting humanitarian crisis caused by Russia's hybrid warfare.

DPR leader Oleksandr Zakharchenko has given an order in person to the First Army Corps, allowing the use of any type of weapons to shell the positions of the Armed Forces of Ukraine," the GUR reported. The intelligence department draws attention to the fact that members of the illegal armed groups in Donbas are interested in more intensive shelling of the Ukrainian troops as in that case, they get increased payments from the so-called 'command' for "participation in combat operations."

Lawyer: Witness in Savchenko's case impersonates another person, 26.11.2015

The court questioned Pochechuyev via video conference – the hearing was held in Moscow, while the FSB officer was in Voronezh. This man was sporting a wig and sunglasses. According to Novikov, the signature of Pochechuyev left on the form for witnesses in court differs from that in the protocols in Savchenko's case file. "We requested a handwriting expert study ... On Monday came the reply from the experts. The signatures are different. It's unbelievable," wrote Novikov. "Frankly, I didn't fully believe it at first. It so happens sometimes that the witnesses lie, but they lie under their real names. But neither I, nor my colleagues have ever seen such thing when a witness impersonates another person in court. It even outplays all other nonsense Savchenko's case is composed of," said the lawyer. Ilya Novikov went on to call this fact "a scandal."

Kiev anti-government demonstration descends into antisemitism, 24.11.2015

Far-right anti-government protesters in Kiev on Sunday called for the end of what they asserted is Jewish control over the Ukrainian government and accused Israel of seeking to colonise their country.

"Ukraine found itself in a grip of the world Zionist conspiracy. We are fed up with this power with President Valtsman and [Parliament] speaker Groisman and other Jew trash," one of the speakers asserted, referring to an antisemitic conspiracy theory that identifies President Petro Poroshenko as a hidden Jew.

Another speaker, who said he was wounded during the Maidan Revolution, called Poroshenko a "kike" and accused him of neglecting those who were injured for Ukraine. Antisemitic conspiracy theories abound online in both Russia and Ukraine, especially in regard to the current Ukrainian conflict, and more than one was advanced at Sunday's rally. "World Zionism wants to move all of Israel to Ukraine," former anti-Maidan activist Alexander Borozenets told the crowd. "All of this war is to settle Israel here. This is their goal and the blood of our sons is not worth anything to them."

PROSECUTOR: MH17 INVESTIGATION GOING WELL, 01.07.2015

The criminal investigation into the cause of the disaster with flight MH17 in eastern Ukraine is going well, according to chief prosecutor Fred Westerbeke.

The chief prosecutor of the Public Prosecutor's national office said on Tuesday that though the investigators haven't reached the point of "formally" identifying suspects, they have a group of potential suspects in view, NU reports. "We are getting closer to legal and convincing evidence," he said. According to the Public Prosecutor, the most likely scenario is that the Malaysian Airlines airplane was shot down by a BUK-missile. But that is not the only scenario that the Prosecutor is looking at. Experts are busy investigating alternative scenarios in order to substantiate or exclude them.

The families of the 298 victims were also informed of the status of the investigation on Tuesday.

Ukraine ranks 12th in Global Terrorism Index, 17.11.2015

The Australian Institute for Economics and Peace undertook a study, based on the results of which a rating of countries with the highest terrorist threat was compiled. Such countries as Iraq, Afghanistan, Nigeria, Pakistan and Syria, where terrorist attacks have become commonplace, are ranked in the top 5 positions. It should be noted that Ukraine taking the 12th position has become the most dangerous country for life among the countries of the former CIS (Russia took the 23rd place). Ukraine climbed to the 12th position due to the war in Donbas and Malaysian aircraft crash. "Only 3 deaths were recorded as a result of terrorism in Ukraine from 2000 to 2013, as compared with 665 deaths in 2014. Mostly they were caused by shelling carried out by 'Donetsk People's Republic', as well as by launch of a surface-to-air missile that hit the Malaysia Airlines aircraft," says the study.

A total of 99 countries supported the document, among them Belarus, Kazakhstan, the United States and Ukraine. Another 84 countries, including Armenia, Azerbaijan and Serbia, did not register themselves on the digital display for the voting. Elaborating on the decision to abstain from the vote, Russia's Ambassador to the UN Vitaly Churkin noted that the annex to the IAEA report "contained factually inaccurate assertions that Sevastopol during the entire period covered in the report [2014] had allegedly been part of Ukraine." "This is a false statement ignoring the fact that following the illegal coup in Kiev in February 2014, Crimea's population, including the city of Sevastopol, voted in the referendum for the secession from Ukraine and for the reunification with Russia," the diplomat said. According to him, Russia cannot agree with the agency's documents, which "contradict this objective reality." "For us they are negligible from the legal and practical points of view and have no content," Churkin said.

State of emergency introduced as Crimea loses electricity, 22.11.2015

A state of emergency has been declared in Crimea after pylons carrying electricity from Ukraine were blown up, cutting off power to almost two million people. Total blackouts have been reported in a number of major cities in the peninsula. The electricity pylons were damaged by explosions on November 20, as a result two of the four facilities were disabled. Several attempts have been made over the past two months to cut off electricity to the occupied peninsula. Ukrainian Tatars and volunteers have for months prevented overland truck and train shipments of food and other goods to Crimea.

Obama, Putin Discuss Syria, Ukraine During Climate Talks, 30.11.2015

Russia and the U.S. are both involved in a new diplomatic effort in Vienna to bring about a ceasefire, potentially within weeks. The White House said that Obama told Putin that Syrian President Bashar Assad must leave power as part of that transition, a long-held U.S. position that remains at odds with Russia's support for Assad. Obama also called on Russia to focus its airstrikes in Syria on Islamic State militants, not rebels fighting Assad, the White House said. The two leaders also discussed implementing a ceasefire in Ukraine.
