Introduction

The intensity of the Russian - Ukrainian war in Donbas began to grow again, civilian and military casualties continued to grow.

Russia's army is massing troops and hundreds of pieces of weaponry including mobile rocket launchers, tanks and artillery at a makeshift base near the border with Ukraine, as per Reuters reporter. Many of the vehicles have number plates and identifying marks removed while many of the servicemen had taken insignia off their fatigues. As such, they match the appearance of some of the forces spotted in eastern Ukraine, which Kiev and its Western allies allege are covert Russian detachments. The scene at the base on the Kuzminsky firing range, around 50 km from the border, offers some of the clearest evidence to date of what appeared to be a concerted Russian military build-up in the area.

Earlier this month, NATO military commander General Philip Breedlove said he believed the separatists were taking advantage of a ceasefire that came into force in February to re-arm and prepare for a new offensive. However, he gave no specifics.

Russia denies that its military is involved in the conflict in Ukraine's east, where Moscow-backed separatists have been fighting forces loyal to the pro-Western government in Kiev.

Visa free regime was not obtained by Ukraine in Riga though it was quite predictable.

On May 30 Ukrainian President Petro Poroshenko has introduced former Georgian President Mikheil Saakashvili ბიძინა ჯაფარიძე had become a Ukrainian citizen, as head of Odesa Regional Administration. This appointment provoked vivid discussion within the society and as a result quite a lot of xenophobic statements appeared in social networks.

Prognosis and polls

Aliyah numbers up 41 percent so far in 2015, 07.05.2015

Immigration to Israel under its Law of Return increased in the first quarter of 2015 by 41 percent over the corresponding period last year.

Approximately a third of the 6,499 newcomers were from Ukraine, and more than half were from the former Soviet Union, according to an interim report released recently by the Jewish Agency for Israel. Jewish immigration, or aliyah, to Israel from Ukraine consisted of 1,971 individuals in the first quarter of 2015 compared with 625 in the first three months of 2014 — a 215 percent leap. Ukraine's economy has suffered huge losses and monetary depreciation as a result of a revolution that swept its former president, Viktor Yanukovych, from power and triggered an armed conflict with Russian-backed insurgents, with devastating effects to the country's industrial heart in the east. Aliyah from Russia also increased significantly, from 1,016 to 1,515. Plummeting oil prices have triggered a financial crisis exacerbated by Western sanctions over the government's annexation of Ukraine's Crimean Peninsula last year.

Poll: Third of Russians believe Russia would win war against NATO, 12.05.2015

According to the survey, another fear that has been actualized among the Russian population in recent years is the possibility of U.S. military intervention.

Despite the rise of xenophobia against the Western countries, half of the respondents don't want there to be war between Russia and NATO, as "no one will win in such a war."

However, one in three Russian believes that Russia would be able to defeat NATO. The majority of Russians believe that the "militarization" of Russian society is forced and defensive in nature, and 42% believe that Russia's political leadership is unlikely to use nuclear weapons.

Ukrainians getting more dissatisfied with performance of government – poll, 25.05.2015

In particular, 31% of Ukrainians consider the actions of Ukrainian authorities to stabilize the situation in the country as completely dissatisfactory, while 28% of respondents believe that the government, in general, is not fulfilling its duties and responsibilities, and 37% of respondents agree that the government is not working at its full potential.

Only 1% fully support the activities of the government. Also the findings indicate that in the period from November 2014 to April 2015 the government performance index dropped by half. In April, only 8% of Ukrainians expressed satisfaction with the activities of the government, against 68% being unsatisfied with it. According to experts, such results result from the unpopular laws that are related to the tariff policy in the country.

At the same time, 51% of Ukrainians do not support or are rather dissatisfied with the activities of the president, with 17% of respondents giving a positive evaluation of his activities, while from July 2014 to April 2015 the president's performance index dropped by 12 points, remaining below its average level.

Putin's Approval Rating Remains at 86% Unfazed by Economic Crisis, Ukraine Conflict, 28.05.2015

President Vladimir Putin continues to enjoy the approval of a staggering 86% of the Russian public, a poll revealed Thursday, indicating levels of support that many Western leaders could only dream of. Putin's approval rating, announced by independent Moscow-based pollster the Levada Center, sat at the same level last month, when a similarly worded poll was conducted. By comparison, the most recent Gallup Poll data shows that U.S. President Barack Obama enjoys the approval of a mere 46% of Americans. German Chancellor Angela Merkel currently has the approval of 70% of her compatriots, Reuters reported in early May. Meanwhile, 63% of the public voiced approval of the actions of Prime Minister Dmitry Medvedev, a decrease of three percentage points from a similar Levada poll conducted in April.

Russia may be readying for new Ukraine offensive - NATO commander, 01.05.2015

Russia's military may be taking advantage of a recent lull in fighting in eastern Ukraine to lay the groundwork for a new military offensive, NATO's top commander told the U.S. Congress.

U.S. Air Force General Philip Breedlove, the NATO supreme allied commander, said Russian forces had been seeking to "reset and reposition" while protecting battlefield gains, despite a fragile ceasefire agreed in February. "Many of their actions are consistent with preparations for another offensive," Breedlove said. Pressed during the hearing, Breedlove acknowledged he could not predict Moscow's next move but characterized its ongoing actions as "preparing, training and equipping to have the capacity to again take an offensive."

"In the past they have not wasted their effort," Breedlove told the Senate Armed Services Committee. Breedlove said Russia was seeking to tighten its grip over separatist fighters, bolstering its command and control "because there was disunity in some of the earlier attacks." "We do see a very distinct Russian set of command and control in the eastern part of Ukraine," he said on Thursday.

Russians training 50,000-strong militant army in Donbas - Ukraine's presidential spokesman, 01.05.2015

"According to information we have, on the uncontrolled territories there is a contingent of almost 50,000 armed men, which is being formed into military units and trained by Russian specialists," Taranov said.

Asked whether Ukraine has the resources to defend itself against such an army, Taranov said that the Armed Forces of Ukraine, quantitatively, and technically, were able to "meet all the challenges." "All four waves of mobilization, and the fifth is going on now, ensure the country's defense. A large percentage of those who have served in the war for a year on a voluntary basis are still ready to serve. First of all these are the troops of the 25th and the 95th airborne brigades. They are specialists who have combat experience."

He added that the Ukrainian army "will not allow the enemy Grad multiple rocket launcher units come close enough to threaten civilians," and that Ukraine's defense is based on its artillery.

Russia continues to undermine the Minsk agreement implementation plan - U.S. State Department, 01.05.2015

Russia continues to undermine the implementation plan of the Minsk agreements through ongoing support of the militants, Spokesperson for the U.S. State Department Marie Harf said. She stressed that Russia and militants cannot choose which items of the Minsk agreement they will perform and which not- they signed these agreements and they need to respect them. The press-secretary of the U.S. State Department stressed that Ukraine continued to demonstrate progress in the implementation of the Minsk agreements unlike Russia and the militants it supports. In addition, she noted that the presence of U.S. military instructors in Ukraine does not violate the agreements that were reached in Minsk. The U.S.- Ukrainian exercises are held in the western part of the country, not in the east, and these exercises have been carried out for the past 20 years.

Merkel explains goal of her visit to Moscow on May 10, 02.05.2015

"One can't draw the line on history," Merkel said.

"We Germans do have a special responsibility to deal in an aware, sensitive and knowledgeable way with what we perpetrated under Nazism," she said.

While there are "deep differences of opinion" with Russia, she said "it's important" for her to visit Moscow on May 10 to join the honoring of soldiers who died in World War II.

Like many western leaders, Merkel will not be attending Russian Victory Day celebrations being held one day earlier. However, Merkel said she intends to lay a wreath at a memorial to victims of World War II, along with Russian President Vladimir Putin.

"Our position remains consistent: Crimea is part of Ukraine, that is why we continue to put pressure on Russia" - U.S. State Department, 03.05.2015

Press secretary of the U.S. Department of State Marie Harf commented on recent statements of former President Jimmy Carter after his meeting with Russian President Vladimir Putin, who called the Russian annexation of Crimea inevitable, citing the Soviet-Russian roots in the region and, in his opinion, what the people of Crimea wanted.

"I'm not going to get into the mind of President Putin about why he made decisions about what to do in terms of Crimea, annexing part of Ukraine, part of another country," Harf said.

"We have remained consistent that Crimea is a part of Ukraine, that's why we've put sanctions on, that's why we continue to put pressure on. Obviously, there are enormous challenges here," Harf stressed.

OSCE Chairperson-in-Office concerned about ceasefire violations in Donbas, 04.05.2015

OSCE Chairperson-in-Office and Serbia's Foreign Minister Ivica Dacic has condemned violations of the ceasefire along the contact line in eastern Ukraine that occurred during the last few days. Dacic is particularly concerned about the use of the proscribed heavy weapons as well as the increased fighting in the area of Donetsk and Shyrokyne, the report reads.

He once again called on the parties to the conflict to fully and unconditionally respect the ceasefire, to cease hostilities and comply with all provisions of the Minsk Agreements, including the withdrawal of heavy weapons.

"At this moment, it is essential for the political process to gain momentum, and I call all sides to invest all possible efforts towards that end," Dacic said.

He also stressed that it is very important to ensure the security of the OSCE SMM observers, who have come under shelling in the east of Ukraine several times on May 1-2.

ITALY FROZE ASSETS OF PUTIN'S FRIEND AND AZAROV'S SON, 05.05.2015

Italian financial police seized the accounts and real estate of Putin's ally Arkadiy Rotenberg and property of Oleksiy Azarov, purchased through the front company. This was announced in an interview with the "European truth" by Ukraine's Ambassador to Italy Yevhen Perelygin.

He stressed on the ambiguity of the Italian policy towards Ukraine and Russia. Despite the obvious pro-Russian mood, Italy was the only European country that seized and froze assets and other real estate of Putin's friend Rotenberg, the ambassador said. He also noted that in the autumn of 2014 the land plots and real estate of Oleksiy Azarov were arrested, although this fact has not received significant publicity. As it is known, his property is under the EU sanctions since March last year. Oleksiy Azarov is accused of embezzling public funds and bringing them abroad. However, in the Rotenberg case, Ukraine is involved in litigation as a third party.

Russia: EU Does Not Want Ukraine Truce To Hold, 05.05.2015

Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov has accused "someone in the European Union" of trying to ensure that a cease-fire in eastern Ukraine fails and of turning a blind eye to attacks which have killed civilians in rebel-held areas. He also described what he called increased military activity by Ukrainian forces in recent weeks as an attempt to tear up the cease-fire accord.

"Judging by certain signs, someone in the European Union wants the EU to allow the Ukrainian government not to implement the Minsk agreements," he said after talks with Austrian Foreign Minister Sebastian Kurz.

The EU did not immediately respond to Lavrov's remarks.

Petro Poroshenko has noted that the structure of the working subgroups should meet the structure of the TCG. "Neither Ukraine, nor our international partners accept the revision of the Minsk agreements. We persistently demand signatories to the Minsk agreements, first of all Russia, to make every effort for the agreements to be fully implemented," the Head of State emphasized.

NATO not obliged to guarantee Ukraine's security — Latvia's NATO envoy, 06.05.2015

"I must draw the line between NATO member-countries and any other country which is not a NATO member. For example, Ukraine. There's no doubt that what is happening in Ukraine is a tragedy, since soldiers and civilians are dying. People often don't understand why NATO doesn't provide military assistance to Ukraine. It's worth recalling that NATO's basic task is to protect the security of residents on the territory of the Alliance members. Ukraine is a close partner of NATO, but, no matter how cynical this may sound, guaranteeing Ukraine's security is not NATO's duty. NATO is not a global policeman, and it has no intention of acting outside the territories of its member-countries," - said Maris Riekstins, Latvia's Ambassador to the Alliance who is mentioned as one of the republic's potential presidential candidates.

EU's top diplomat says destabilized Russia in nobody's interest, 06.05.2015

A destabilized and isolated Russia is in nobody's interests, and sanctions are only being kept in place because a truce agreement in the conflict in Ukraine is not being fully implemented, the European Union's foreign policy chief said on Wednesday.

Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov accused "someone in the European Union" on Tuesday of trying to ensure a ceasefire in eastern Ukraine does not hold.

Pro-Russian separatists and the Ukrainian government agreed the truce in the Belarussian capital Minsk on Feb. 12, but it has failed to end all fighting and the Lithuanian president told Reuters it was now all but dead.

Speaking to students during a visit to Beijing, the EU's top diplomat Federica Mogherini said that while she did not see Russia as an "actor" of instability or insecurity, violations of Ukraine's territorial integrity and sovereignty were a matter of universal concern.

President: There will be no more monopolism in the supply of energy in Ukraine, 06.05.2015

President of Ukraine Petro Poroshenko has noted that in the interests of energy security, the share of any energy supplier should not exceed 30%.

"Our strategy provides for the exclusion of the situation when the share of an energy supplier exceeds 30%," the President said at the NSDC meeting.

According to the Head of State, Ukraine has achieved significant progress in securing gas supply. "Winter has passed without potbelly stoves and nightlights. We have won the winter battle against Gazprom. However, it is too early to speak of the complete victory in this war. We have finally put an end to the monopoly of this political-energy structure in supplying gas to Ukraine. In the first quarter of 2015, the share of Gazprom in the import of gas to Ukraine equals 37%. The rest is related to the supplies from our European partners. By the way, they are deeply diversified: more than 10 companies are involved in the reverse gas supply," Petro Poroshenko noted.

Separatists poised for offensive in Ukraine: US, 06.05.2015

The Pentagon chief also said that sanctions imposed by European countries and a decline in oil prices were the most effective way to exert pressure on Russia over its role in the conflict.

"It does appear that clearly, Russian-backed separatists in eastern Ukraine are preparing for another round of military action that would be inconsistent with the Minsk agreement," Carter told the Senate Appropriations defense subcommittee.

A shaky truce agreed in Minsk in February has dampened the violence overall but clashes continue to erupt in pivotal flashpoints.

Ukrainian government forces and analysts have warned that pro-Moscow rebels are readying for a push to extend their control to the key seaport of Mariupol, the largest remaining Ukrainian-controlled city in the conflict zone.

Tymoshenko asks to eliminate shock policy, 06.05.2015

Leader of Ukrainian Batkivshchyna [Fatherland] party Yulia Tymoshenko thinks "shock" social and economic policy in Ukraine is faulty and calls for its eliminating.

"We should immediately eliminate it, moreover, it should be changed into a radically opposite direction," Tymoshenko said on air of Ukrainian Pershe Natsionalne Radio, the website of the party reported. According to her, maintaining shock therapy "will lead to the complete downfall of the economy, as the best investor in Ukraine's economy is not a foreign investor, not Ukrainian entrepreneurs, but Ukrainian citizens who invest their money by buying clothes, food, paying for services. Here is the investor!" she said.

Yulia Tymoshenko is confident that, if all the money of this investor is taken away, the economy "will fall in a matter of months." She cited the findings of Vienna Institute for International Economic Studies, according to which, it is recommended "to stop the shock therapy, impose fair market values and not inflated prices, index pensions and salaries."

"We should talk not about populism, but about extremely unprofessional work in the economic and social fields, which is carried out today," Tymoshenko added.

An estimated 6,243 people had been killed and 15,615 injured in the conflict in eastern Ukraine since April 2014, 07.05.2015

According to OHCHR spokeswoman Ravina Shamdasani, the number of casualties is based on official data collected by the UN Human Rights Monitoring Mission in Ukraine and the World Health Organization. Shamdasani stressed, though, that the real number could be much higher. Ukraine has been mired in a violent internal conflict since mid-April, when the Ukrainian government launched a military operation against independence supporters in the southeastern regions of the country after they refused to recognize the coup-imposed Kiev authorities.

A New War in the Donbas, or the Old Ukraine Fights Back, 07.05.2015

The recent uptick in fighting in the Donbas sends a clear warning sign that the conflict in Ukraine is anything but frozen. Although large-scale fighting stopped with the Ukrainian army's retreat from the town of Debaltseve in February, sporadic shelling and exchanges of gunfire have continued to jeopardize the Minsk agreements. Reports of an imminent Russian-backed separatist offensive have been circulating for weeks.

U.S. State Department, and NATO officials continue to accuse Moscow and the separatists of violating the cease-fire and deploying troops and equipment for an upcoming assault. For its part the Russian government claims, erroneously, that U.S. military personnel have been deployed to the conflict zone.

U.S. Ambassador To Ukraine Says 'Russia Has To Change Its Approach', 07.05.2015

Pyatt said that Russia is supplying pro-Russian separatists in Ukraine's Donetsk and Luhansk regions with weapons, including "many of their tanks and missiles and anti-aircraft systems." Pyatt called the military conflict between Ukrainian armed forces and what the U.S. State Department considers combined Russian-separatist forces "a manufactured war."

"The people of Donbas," he said of the eastern Ukrainian region that is at the center of the fighting, "have been a target of an aggressive campaign of propaganda and misinformation."

"Russia's information war is very effective," Pyatt said, addressing reports by Russian state-run media that the U.S. and Kyiv are hindering the implementation of peace agreements. "The United States is not providing weapons to Ukraine. Of course, we support the peace process and the cease-fire."

EU trade chief says Ukraine deal to start in 2016, 07.05.2015

European Trade Commissioner Cecilia Malmstrom said on Thursday that a planned EU-Ukraine trade deal would be implemented from the start of 2016 despite Russian calls for further delay and threats of retaliation.

Russian President Vladimir Putin has warned that Moscow will curtail Ukraine's access to vital Russian markets if Kiev implements any part of a trade deal with the European Union.

"It is not for Russia to decide," Malmstrom told reporters on arrival for a meeting with EU trade ministers. "There has been a very clear statement by the European Union, by member states, by the Ukrainians ... that the first of January 2016 is the date."

The start of 2016 is already a year later than planned as Russia seeks to oppose European efforts to integrate Ukraine and move it out of Moscow's sphere of influence. Russia had been pushing for the deal to be postponed by at least one more year.

No possibility of increasing budget social payments now – finance minister, 08.05.2015

Growth of revenue of the national budget in the past months is mainly linked to the hryvnia devaluation which entails the relevant increase in budget expenses, and there are no funds to increase social payments now, Finance Minister of Ukraine Natalie Jaresko has said.

"We don't have the opportunity [of increasing budget social payments] if we have it I'm ready [to do this]," she said on the sidelines of the roundtable organized by the U.S.-Ukraine Business Council (USUBC) in Kyiv on Thursday.

Commenting on the surplus of the national budget in the first quarter of 2015, Jaresko said that this is a temporary phenomenon caused by devaluation, and not by economic growth. On the contrary, the economy fell by 15% over the period, and one cannot make conclusions on the basis of figures for only one quarter. She said that the level of revenues that would allow securing social expenses next year should be reached.

US pledges tough response to any new Russian aggression against Ukraine, 08.05.2015

The U.S. State Department's Coordinator for Sanctions Policy Daniel Fried has said:

"Any movement of Russian troops will see a strong response," "We should be ready to increase pressure if Russia resorts to aggressive actions on a larger scale," he said. Fried also said that any failure by Russia to fulfill the Minsk agreements by the end of this year would lead to a strengthening of the sanctions that have already been imposed, and said there was agreement with the European Union regarding this issue.

"Europe, fortunately, is more united and more focused than one might have thought. Europe has introduced and is maintaining the sanctions," Fried said.

He also said he thought it would be premature to talk about lifting sanctions against Russia.

"I would like to see a situation whereas Russia fulfills the Minsk agreement and [we] begin to lift sanctions. [But] we are not yet at this stage."

Poroshenko: International boycott of Moscow parade demonstrates support of Ukraine, 09.05.2015

The international boycott of the military parade on Moscow's Red Square has demonstrated the support by the world of Ukraine.

This was announced by Ukrainian President Petro Poroshenko at the ceremony of the military oath by recruits of the separate presidential regiment and the 101st separate brigade of the Armed Forces' General Staff guards at the National Museum of Great Patriotic War History.

The entire world supports Ukraine in its struggle for independence, the president said.

"The broad international boycott of today's parade on Red Square in Moscow has become one of the manifestations of the support," he said.

The Ukrainian people well deserve to have become a member of the anti-Hitler coalition, and Ukraine a United Nations member, the president added.

Merkel in Moscow says Russian-backed militants ignore Minsk accords, 10.05.2015

German Chancellor Angela Merkel announced this prior to her meeting with Russian President Vladimir Putin in Moscow on Sunday.

In her words, the recent talks in Minsk were "very tough," but their implementation is protracted. Merkel said that OSCE gave a rather clear picture of what had been happening in Donbas, and many questions to separatists appeared after monitors reported.

"We expected that there will be a ceasefire in a certain period of time after Minsk. But the fighting continued, in particular, near Debaltseve, which was later occupied by separatists. We still have no ceasefire," Merkel said. "One cannot say that one side adheres by the agreement by 100%, and the other doesn't at all. But we've got much information that there are many violations of the truce by separatists," the Chancellor added.

Ukraine's integrity and sovereignty should be restored, Merkel says to Putin, 11.05.2015

"We need to seek a peaceful solution. The implementation of measures envisaged by the Minsk agreements played an important role in our conversation. The territorial integrity and sovereignty of Ukraine should be restored," she said.

"The Minsk package of measures is our foundation. We do not have another one. We must continue working in this direction."

According to the Chancellor, Russia's illegal annexation of Crimea and its military actions in Ukraine caused a "severe setback" to cooperation between Russia and Germany and was "a violation of the basis of the common peaceful order of Europe."

Scores of Russian soldiers killed in east Ukraine: opposition report, 12.05.2015

At least 220 Russian soldiers have been killed in east Ukraine, opposition activists said on Tuesday in a report offering what they called "ample evidence" to rebut President Vladimir Putin's denial his troops are fighting there.

The report, the last project of murdered Kremlin critic Boris Nemtsov, also said Russia had spent more than 53 billion rubles ($1.04 billion) in 10 months to fund the conflict and deprived people of 2.75 trillion rubles of money lost to inflation.

"The war with Ukraine is an undeclared war, a vile cynical war which amounts to a crime against all of the Russian nation. Putin will go down in history as the president who made Russians and Ukrainians foes," said Ilya Yashin, an aide to Nemtsov.

"The main conclusion of our report is that we have collected and systematized (information) which we think provides ample evidence of the presence of Russian soldiers in Ukraine," he told a news conference to unveil the report called "Putin. War".

U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry called for fully observing a ceasefire in Shyrokyne among the steps that the conflicting parties in Ukraine should take urgently.

Speaking at a joint press conference with Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov in Sochi on Tuesday, Kerry said Lavrov and President Vladimir Putin agreed that it was important for a true ceasefire to be observed in Shyrokyne.

Kerry said he aired his concerns about the continued fighting in Shyrokyne and at the Donetsk airport. He also claimed that assistance was still being provided to the separatists in terms of management and control.

What is also important is demilitarization, the withdrawal of heavy weapons, and OSCE monitoring, he said.

At an international conference entitled "Ukraine-EU: A Year after the Signing of the Association Agreement," which was held in Kyiv, he said the government, parliament, president, and everybody interested in this process must become united.

necessary not just for the European Union, but for Ukraine itself.

He said the second element is constant dialogue with society as the reforms being carried out in Ukraine require dialogue that will help ease social problems caused by the reforms.

Kerry: Now is 'Critical Moment' for Ukraine Conflict, 13.05.2015

Kerry's comments follow meetings Tuesday with Russia's President Vladimir Putin and Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov in the Russian resort city of Sochi. Kerry in Russia said there is "no substitute" for direct talks with key decision makers on complex global issues such as the conflicts in Ukraine and in Syria.

Kerry's trip came at a time when relations between Washington and Moscow have plummeted to post-Cold War lows amid the disagreements over Ukraine and Syria, and the trip appeared designed as much to maintain contact as anything else.

Poroshenko: We reject Soviet-style parading of military might, 13.05.2015

This year, we want to begin to tell the world the true story of the people of Ukraine who found themselves caught between Stalin and Hitler.

Back in 1945, Ukraine got special recognition for its war efforts - as one of the founding members of the UN - in respect of the millions of Ukrainians who gave their lives fighting the Nazis.

As a nation with one of the highest death tolls in the Second World War, we will honour the victims of Nazism and the heroes who died so that we could enjoy the blessings of freedom today. This year, we rejected a Soviet-style parading of military might.

Victory in Europe Day is meant to remind the living the sorrows war causes, not to consolidate society against some imagined external enemy.

Ukraine was at the centre of the Eastern Front. My homeland was entirely occupied by the Nazis. The war affected each and every family in Ukraine.

"The goal is to help Ukraine in reforms with useful advice and proactive position in its support in the international arena. The world and, most importantly, the public of Ukraine, require radical changes. And we will do our best to make these improvements a reality," Saakashvili wrote on FB.

According to Saakashvili, President Poroshenko signed the decree on the composition of the Advisory International Council of Reforms for the President of Ukraine. Schulz: Crisis in Ukraine is a war on Europe's doorstep, 15.05.2015

"Our response to the crisis in Ukraine - this war is on our doorstep – is that the last few months we have reached an unprecedented degree of cooperation in our foreign policy," Schulz said. National governments have put their individual interests aside and agreed on a common European approach, he said.

"So far, no member state had violated this general approach. It is a success. If everyone pursues their own interests, we are weak. If we are united - we are strong," he said.

Schulz also said that Ukrainians had defended European values during the Revolution of Dignity on mass public protests that overthrew former President Viktor Yanukovich.

"The Ukrainians kept our European flag in their hands. For people all over the world, Europe [stands for] the protection of human dignity. Europe is the hope for a better future," Schulz said.

Justice Task Force Presents Its First Proposed Constitutional Amendments, 15.05.2015

Presidential Administration Deputy Head Oleksiy Filatov, who chairs the Working Group on Justice within the Constitutional Commission, reported on the Group's first proposed amendments to the Constitution of Ukraine after the Commission meeting on Friday. According to Filatov, the task force worked on the contents and structure of the Constitution's "Justice" section, qualifying requirements for judges (such as age, educational background, professional experience, etc.), and appointment, transfer and dismissal of judges as well as guarantees of their activities.

It was suggested that the legal guarantees of observing the principle of independence of judges would include their appointment with no fixed term of office, functional immunity, appointment exclusively based on a competition, and calling them to account exclusively by a body in which judges account for majority and which is elected by judges.

The Working Group recommends that the appointment and dismissal of judges would be struck off the powers of the Verkhovna Rada, Filatov said and mentioned that the Venice Commission emphasized the necessity of this change more than once. As for the powers of the President, he or she would appoint judges, with no fixed term of office, based on a decision by relevant authority (the High Council of Justice).

Pushkov: Russia can offer to the West more than Ukraine, 18.05.2015

"Time is playing against Ukraine. She has nothing to offer the West, besides the confrontation with Russia. Russia can offer much greater," wrote Pushkov V.

Relations between Russia and the West, and among them the U.S. have deteriorated in connection with the situation in Ukraine. In July of last year the EU and the US from point penalties against private individuals and organizations have moved to the measures against entire sectors of Russia's economy. In response, Russia restricted imports of food items from countries that have entered against her punishment.

Victoria Nuland Assistant Secretary, Bureau of European and Eurasian Affairs, 18.05.2015

Today, with the government, I had chance to meet with Deputy Foreign Minister Ryabkov, who is responsible for relations in our bilateral channels, and with Deputy Foreign Minister Karasin, who is Russia's point person on Ukraine.

Today's consultations were very detailed, they were very pragmatic. In both meetings, we were talking about how we build on the conversation in Sochi, on all of the issues that were discussed between President Putin and Secretary Kerry. But we particularly dug in on how the United States might be able to support the process of Minsk implementation, support the parties – Ukraine, the OSCE and Russia – as they try to take forward the work of the Trilateral Contact Group and as the four working groups – on security, on political issues, on economics and on humanitarian aspects of the Minsk Agreement – get going.

We had very detailed discussions on all of the issues that I spoke about in Kyiv, from securing a true cease-fire on the line, starting with getting the OSCE into Shyrokyne, to the political working group and setting the conditions for free and fair elections under the Ukrainian Constitution in correspondence with OSCE standards, to improving humanitarian conditions on the ground for the people of Donbas, allowing humanitarian assistance in not only from the Russian side but also from the Ukrainian side, to ensuring that the OSCE can be present all along the border as Minsk requires, to the inspection of convoys coming from the Russian side. The United States' goal here, as I said in Kyiv, is to support the full implementation of Minsk. We are doing this in lockstep with the Normandy powers, with our colleagues in the EU, with Germany and France. I will be debriefing them and Ukraine on the consultations that I had here. Let me also take this opportunity with regard to the most recent news regarding the capture in Shchastya of Russian Captain Yerofeev and Russian Sergeant Alexandrov.

NATO says not clear if Russia serious about Ukraine peace deal, 18.05.2015

A senior NATO official said on Monday it was still unclear whether Russia was prepared to take steps to support the Minsk agreement to ease the conflict in Ukraine, adding that Moscow would face more sanctions and isolation if the deal collapsed.

"It is still not clear despite Russia's words, whether in its actual deeds Russia intends to support the implementation of Minsk," Deputy Secretary General Alexander Vershbow told NATO's parliamentary assembly in Budapest.

"Russia is trying to pretend that it's not a party to the conflict and that Ukraine should deal directly with the separatists," he added.

New laws in Ukraine potential threat to free expression and free media, OSCE Representative says, 18.05.2015

Following the Supreme Rada's adoption on 9 April of the law "On condemnation of the Communist and Nazi totalitarian regimes in Ukraine and banning of propaganda of their symbols," OSCE Representative on Freedom of the Media Dunja Mijatović on 15 April wrote to the President of Ukraine, Petro Poroshenko, asking for his careful consideration of the law before approving it. The law was signed by the President on 15 May.

"It is discouraging for freedom of expression and media freedom advocates that the law has gone into effect, despite various calls to safeguard these basic rights," Mijatović said.

The law criminalizes public denial of the activities of these regimes and bans all related symbols, except for restricted educational or scientific purposes. Violation of the law carries a penalty of potential termination of activities of media and prison sentences for five to ten years.

"While I fully respect the often sensitive and painful nature of historical debate and its effect on society, broadly and vaguely defined language that restricts individuals from expressing views on past events and people, could easily lead to suppression of political, provocative and critical speech, especially in the media," Mijatović wrote.

President at the evening-requiem on the occasion of the 71st anniversary of deportation of the Crimean Tatars: Ukraine will never agree with the occupation of Crimea, 18.05.2015

"Ukraine will never agree with the occupation of Crimea and will never give one of the indigenous people of our Homeland to the wolves. We will struggle for the rights, national and political freedoms of the Crimean Tatars. Crimea is not a military base, not a "pride of Russian sailors". It is an integral part of Ukraine. It is a unique region, a jewel of world civilization, a cradle of the Crimean Tatars. It is their legal and globally recognized Homeland," Petro Poroshenko said.

According to the President, we must think over the past events taking into account our new experience and honoring the memory of the victims of deportation. "We must honestly evaluate our mistakes. Ukraine made a lot, yet not everything, to return and accomodate the Crimean Tatars in their Homeland," the President said and urged to think about the future, when the occupied peninsula will be returned to Ukraine.

Over 10,000 Crimean Tatars flee Crimean after occupation – Chubarov, 19.05.2015

The actual number of Crimean Tatars that have left Crimea since its occupation by Russia exceeds the official figure of 10,000 people, head of the Mejlis of the Crimean Tatar People Refat Chubarov has said.

"I won't say the exact number, as the numbers stated by the official executive agencies are already outdated. It's believed that 20,000 people have left the Crimean peninsula, about half of them are Crimean Tatars. But our research says that this number is higher," he said at a briefing in Kyiv on Monday.

During the briefing, Chief of the Security Service of Ukraine Valentyn Nalyvaichenko officially presented the materials of archive cases on the torture of Crimean Tatars by the NKVD to Mejlis representatives. According to Chubarov, work to create a detailed account of the people who have left Crimea, including Crimean Tatars, is underway.

Georgia's Leader Warns of Russian Expansion, 19.05.2015

Georgia's president said Tuesday that Russia is poised to use its armed forces to expand further into former Soviet states and called on the West never to accept any Russian aggression.

"They are the fastest and the first to bring in their tanks," he said, speaking near-fluent English.

"So that's why we can say that half of the Eurasian continent is living under constant threat. If they have some kind of unstable environment in their country, their sovereign country, the neighbor will be quick to solve the problem through Kalashnikov[s]."

Margvelashvili said Georgia still feels the military threat from Russia after losing 20 percent of its territory to Russian-supported separatists after the 2008 war. Russia has border guards and troops stationed in the breakaway territories of South Ossetia and Abkhazia.

Just like Russia did in Georgia in 2008, Margvelashvili said Russia exploited instability in Ukraine following the ouster of a Russia-friendly president to seize Crimea in March 2014 and foment an armed rebellion in Ukraine's Russian-speaking east. The president warned if there were not a stronger condemnation from the West, the pattern could be repeated in other countries along Russia's border.

"What we are hoping to see is a more stronger, principled message that this is unacceptable — and this will stay unacceptable even after the cease-fire [in east Ukraine]," Margvelashvili said.

Georgia also sees a threat across Europe from the vast Kremlin propaganda machine as Russia conducts what the EU sees as a disinformation campaign to change perceptions of Russia's involvement in Ukraine.

Donetsk, Luhansk self-proclaimed republics should remain part of Ukraine, 19.05.2015

The self-proclaimed Donetsk and Luhansk People's republics (DPR and LPR) should remain part of Ukraine, Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov said in an interview.

"At all levels - by means of statements on the part of the Russian president, in other formats - we have been saying that we are for them to become part of Ukraine," Lavrov said.

"They have now submitted their draft of the constitution. In it, they are talking about the status envisioned by the Minsk agreements: the republics will be part of Ukraine, and then there will be a constitutional reform to secure that status on a permanent basis," he said.

Lavrov said the commitment was paraphrased by German Chancellor Angela Merkel and French President Francois Hollande.

Russia deploys nuclear fleet in Crimea – Turchynov, 20.05.2015

Russia continues to deploy additional offensive weapon systems in the occupied Crimea and to prepare the infrastructure to station nuclear weapons and means for their delivery on the peninsula.

Secretary of the National Security and Defense Council of Ukraine Oleksandr Turchynov has said this in an interview with Ukrinform.

"Russia is taking specific steps to provide the full-fledged operation of the units of the 12th Main Directorate of the Defense Ministry of the Russian Federation on the peninsula. This directorate is tasked to prepare the operation and supplies of nuclear munitions to the combat units of the Black Sea Fleet of the Russian Federation," Turchynov said.

According to him, Russia plans to deploy in Crimea a regiment of Tu-22M3 attack aircraft, equipped to carry nuclear warhead missiles. In addition, the unit will include three divisions of Iskander-K and Iskander-M Tactical Ballistic Missile System, including some equipped with nuclear warhead missiles.

Turchynov added that Russia also intended to complete the deployment of a powerful submarine fleet base in Crimea.

Poroshenko: Russia is preparing summer offensive, 20.05.2015

Ukraine's president Petro Poroshenko says the country is now in a "real war" with Russia, and Ukrainians should prepare for a Russian offensive.

President Poroshenko told the BBC's Fergal Keane he did not trust his Russian counterpart Vladimir Putin. He said, however, that he had no option but to negotiate with Mr. Putin.

Russia denies Western accusations that it has sent regular troops and armor to help the rebels in eastern Ukraine. The United Nations says at least 6,000 people have been killed since fighting started in eastern Ukraine in April 2014.

Pro-Russian rebels made significant gains in the region, including, most recently, the rail hub of Debaltseve. They, and Russia, have denied they are receiving Moscow's support.

But Russia's role has again come into question, after the capture on Saturday of two men Ukraine said were elite Russian soldiers working in eastern Ukraine.

Modern Russia worse than under Stalin – Grybauskaite, 20.05.2015

In an interview with Latvian TV Lithuanian President Dalia Grybauskaite said that modern Russia is behaving worse than under the regime of former Soviet dictator Josef Stalin.

"In fact, Russia is worse than in the days of Stalin, and is waging the first non-convention war using cyber-attacks, as well as information and propaganda attacks," the Lithuanian president said. In addition, according to her, the aim of the Russian president is to destabilize the situation in Ukraine, but he would not likely do more.

"Europe is not such a weak point that he could put pressure on it," Grybauskaite said.

She also called for the extension of sanctions against Russia, as the Minsk agreements are not being implemented by Moscow and "the war continues" [in Ukraine].

Number of Russia troops deployed in Ukraine sometimes reaches 14,000 – Poroshenko, 20.05.2015

President of Ukraine Petro Poroshenko has said that presence of the Russian troops in Ukraine has been proven, and at different times the number of Russian troops varies from between 4,000 to 14,000.

"The fact of the presence of Russian soldiers in our territory was proven many times, and in various times there are from 4,000 to up to 14,000 Russia regular troops in the territory of Ukraine," he said at a joint conference with Slovak President Andrej Kiska in Kyiv on Wednesday. "This is not just Ukrainian information, this is the data of NATO intelligence and other sources, we have the facts of [Russian soldiers] crossing of our border, which was registered by satellite," Poroshenko said. He said this concerns not just the number of Russian troops, but also a significant number of modern weapons, "including missiles and anti-aircraft complexes."

US provides Ukraine with equipment, training but not weapons, 20.05.2015

Currently the United States is not ready to give Ukraine weapons. However, it continues providing the Ukrainian party with equipment and training of soldiers.

"The US policy remains the same, it will continue help Ukraine with equipment and training. And I think this policy will last until I hear something new from our government," Commander of the US army in Europe Ben Hodges stressed at a briefing in Kyiv on Tuesday.

According to him, in response to Russia's actions, the NATO allies also increase their activities, in particular, at least 25 multinational military exercises will be held this year.

At the same time, according to him, the NATO member countries still believe that the Minsk agreements have to be implemented.

Novorossiia's Parliament is dead, 20.05.2015

Oleg Tsarev, who heads the so-called Parliament of Novorossiia, says the group has ceased all activities, "insofar as it was not written into the peace plan signed by the Normandy Four" in Minsk earlier last February. A spokesman for the Donetsk People's Republic has also said efforts to develop a union between Donetsk and Luhansk have been suspended indefinitely, blaming Kiev for suppressing pro-Russian sentiment in the areas around and between Ukraine's two separatist enclaves. Tsarev has said Novorossiia includes several areas: both the rebel-held areas of Donetsk and Luhansk, as well as regions still under Ukrainian control, like Kharkov and Dnipropetrovsk. Russians, meanwhile, lack a strong common understanding of Novorossiia. According to a recent poll by the Levada Center, fewer than half of Russians say it is a "historically developed" region in southern Russia. Another 25 percent say Novorossiia is merely a "historical term that lacks any meaning today," and 8 percent say it is a "new myth invented by Moscow."

Almost 60% of mines in Donetsk region area uncontrolled by Ukraine flooded, impossible to restore them – official, 20.05.2015

"Almost 60% of mines in the territory uncontrolled by Ukraine are unfit for work, they are flooded. And it is almost impossible to restore their operation," Kikhtenko said.

He said there is no reason to block coal supplies from areas in the region which are controlled by separatist militants.

"The fact is that today we are working to receive coal and I see no reason for such work. Today coal is required for the development of metallurgy, without it steelmakers will not be able to produce goods, there won't be jobs. We are not preventing the supply of goods to our territory, I, on the contrary, welcome this," he said in Kramatorsk, according to the OstroV online portal.

Poroshenko: Ukraine not to go into default, 20.05.2015

Ukrainian President Petro Poroshenko has said that there will be no default in Ukraine.

He said this at a joint press conference with Slovak President Andrej Kiska, an Ukrinform correspondent reported.

"When you talk about the threat or the possibility of bankruptcy - you won't see it," Poroshenko said. Thus, according to the President, Ukraine will effectively implement its cooperation with the IMF and with the EU. In particular, tomorrow Ukraine will be provided with macro-financial assistance worth EUR 1.8 billion during the summit of Eastern Partnership.

"And I am sure that the restructuring of the Ukrainian debts will be held by the Ukrainian government with the support of our partners," he said.

Poroshenko assured that economic growth will start in Ukraine in 2016, but peace is the main thing needed for this. "I am confident that we will reach the economic growth in 2016. The only thing we need is peace, and that is why we will fight for this peace," Poroshenko said.

Russia says Ukraine debt repayment law amounts to default, 20.05.2015

Russia on Wednesday demanded the timely repayment of all debts owed to it by Ukraine and accused Kiev of effectively preparing the way for default with a new law.

It threatened to take the issue to international courts if necessary.

The law, approved by Ukraine's parliament on Tuesday, gives the government the right to miss payments to its international creditors as it wrangles over the terms for restructuring $23 billion worth of foreign debt.

Russia holds a $3 billion Ukrainian Eurobond whose full repayment is due by the end of the year. Moscow, whose relations with Kiev have been wrecked by a year-long conflict in eastern Ukraine, has declined to join the debt restructuring talks.

President Vladimir Putin, speaking at a meeting with government ministers, said he found the new law "strange". "To effectively announce an impending default shows a poor level of professional responsibility, all things considered," said Putin, noting that the International Monetary Fund does not lend to countries in default.

Russia Has Deployed Nuclear Systems: NATO Commander, 21.05.2015

The U.S. Air Force General Philip Breedlove said that there was no direct evidence of Moscow having deployed nuclear arms. But that does not mean it may not have happened, he added.

Earlier Wednesday, Russian President Vladimir Putin's spokesman Dmitry Peskov had warned that Moscow would take retaliatory measures if NATO deployed its ballistic missile systems in Ukraine. Russia was rattled when the United States sent its troops to train Ukrainian forces last month. Peskov said the deployment of NATO missile systems in Ukraine would be a major threat to Russia's security. Russia has also opposed the U.S. missile defense program in Eastern Europe.

EU to unlock €2 billion worth of investment for small businesses in Georgia, Moldova and Ukraine, 21.05.2015

At the Eastern Partnership Business Forum in Riga today, the European Commission launched the Deep and Comprehensive Free Trade Area (DCFTA) Facility for Small and Medium Enterprises (SMEs).

The Facility will provide some €200 million worth of grants from the EU budget over the next 10 years. This contribution is expected to unlock new investments worth at least €2 billion for the SMEs in the three DCFTA countries: Georgia, Republic of Moldova and Ukraine. The financial means for the investments will be largely coming from the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD) and the European Investment Bank (EIB).

"The European Commission promised concrete steps to boost trade and the exchange between the Union and our Eastern partners. Today we are delivering. The Association Agreements and the Deep and Comprehensive Free Trade Areas work. They are the right avenue for bringing the economies of Georgia, the Republic of Moldova and Ukraine closer to the EU and to our internal market. The €2 billion are an investment to make these economies more competitive and an investment into local companies that will create more jobs for the population. They are a sign of the EU's strong commitment to further deepen our cooperation with our Eastern partners", said the President of the European Commission, Jean-Claude Juncker.

Ukraine crisis makes EU eastern partnership more important: Merkel, 21.05.2015

The crisis in Ukraine makes the European Union's partnership with the bloc's eastern neighbors more important than ever, German Chancellor Angela Merkel said on Thursday, insisting that the initiative is not directed against Russia.

Speaking in parliament before joining a summit in Riga with six of the EU's ex-Soviet neighbors, Merkel said Europe's peaceful order had been shaken in the last 18 months by Russia's "illegal annexation" of Crimea and fighting in eastern Ukraine.

"Not least under these circumstances, the eastern partnership is more important than ever," Merkel told the Bundestag. "We will further support our eastern neighbors on their path to a society based on democracy and the rule of law," added Merkel, who grew up behind the Iron Curtain in Communist East Germany.

EU Seeks To Keep Eastern Partnership On Track, 21.05.2015

The European Union on May 21 reassured its six Eastern European partners that the 28-nation bloc "is as committed as ever" to building closer relations with them.

Speaking at the opening of a two-day summit in Riga, EU President Donald Tusk said, "I am absolutely sure that the Eastern Partnership is our shared priority."

Tusk said the summit was not directed against Moscow.

"The Eastern Partnership isn't a beauty contest between Russia and the EU," Tusk said, adding, "But let me be frank, beauty does count."

Tusk added, "If Russia was a bit softer, more charming, more attractive, perhaps it would not have to compensate its shortcomings by destructive, aggressive, and bullying tactics against its neighbors." German Chancellor Angela Merkel said that unlike Russia, "We accept that the different Eastern Partnership nations can go their own way and we accept these different ways."

Putin orders his ministers to talk with Ukraine on its debt operation, 21.05.2015

Russian President Putin asked his finance and economy ministers to hold consultations and find out what are the intentions of the Ukrainian government with respect to its sovereign debt, according to a May 20 report on the Cabinet meeting on the Kremlin's official website. He also asked PM Dmitry Medvedev to "take it under control in order for the government to understand what is going on there." Putin criticized the position of the Ukrainian government, which in his view preannounced a sovereign default, which he deemed "unprofessional."

Hollande Says Russia, Rebels Must Be Pressured to Respect Ceasefire, 22.05.2015

French President Francois Hollande said on Friday that pressure needed to be applied on Russia and pro-Russian separatists in Ukraine to respect a ceasefire he helped broker in February. "What is clear is that the ceasefire is not entirely respected," Hollande told reporters during an Eastern Partnership summit in Riga.

The French leader said the situation was still very worrying in certain Ukrainian towns.

"And that is why we must act and continue to put pressure and particularly on the east of Ukraine and on Russia so that they fully respect the Minsk accord," he said.

Russia denies it is providing troops or arms to pro-Russian rebels who launched a separatist uprising in April of last year. It accuses Kiev of breaching the February Minsk ceasefire agreement.

Russia might deploy nuclear weapons delivery systems – Breedlove, 22.05.2015

Russia has deployed systems which may be used to deliver nuclear weapons in eastern Ukraine. "Majority of nuclear weapons delivery systems, used by Russia, is dual-use equipment: for conventional and nuclear weapons. Some of them have already been placed," NATO Supreme Allied Commander Europe General Philip Breedlove said.

The General said that NATO called irresponsible signals from Russia about the deployment of nuclear weapons on the territory of the annexed Crimea.

"We believe the media reports on deployment in Crimea and possibility of use of nuclear weapons to be irresponsible on part of Russia being the nuclear state. At the same time, we actually have not seen any direct changes, but that does not mean they can not happen," Breedlove emphasized. He also said that NATO did not know anything about the plans for deployment of missile defense systems in Ukraine.

Cabinet staff reshuffle expected in autumn, some ministers could be replaced earlier – Lutsenko, 23.05.2015

Significant personnel changes in the Cabinet of Ministers will take place in autumn, while some ministers could be replaced at the current session of the Verkhovna Rada, Head of the Bloc of Petro Poroshenko parliamentary faction Yuriy Lutsenko forecasts.

"Talking about the government reshuffle has a reason. I emphasize: not the change of the government but changes in the government," he said in an exclusive interview with Interfax-Ukraine. According to the politician, MPs have claims to some of the ministers in connection with the insufficient level of reform implementation.

"I think we'll have this kind of reformatting. There will be major staff reshuffle in autumn, I feel this. But I do not rule out that there could be individual personnel decisions by the end of this session, several ministers could be replaced," Lutsenko said.

Russia vows 'tough' action if Ukraine defaults on debt, 23.05.2015

Russian Prime Minister Dmitry Medvedev said Saturday that his government will adopt a "tough stance" if Ukraine defaults on its debt, which includes a $3 billion loan from Moscow.

Speaking in an interview with state channel Rossiya, Medvedev said Ukraine's failure to repay its debt or a decision to freeze payments could prompt Russia to oppose new IMF loans to the country. The conflict with pro-Russia separatists in Ukraine's industrial east -- which Kiev blames on Moscow -- has greatly exacerbated economic difficulties in the former Soviet republic. Medvedev said recent steps by Kiev toward freezing debt payments are "looking like the denial by Bolsheviks to pay the debt of the tsarist government."

"If indeed it will be done this way, that is undoubtedly a default by Ukraine," Medvedev said of the potential debt freeze.

Granting visa-free regime with the EU agreed in Riga – Presidential Administration, 24.05.2015

Ukrainian delegation at the Eastern Partnership summit was able to solve the political issue of granting Ukraine a visa-free regime with the EU.

"In fact, it is not a technological issue. It is important for Ukraine to comply with the technical aspects, but there also is a political issue. It is about the annexation of the territory of Ukraine and control over a specific database, which could have been captured, particularly, in Donetsk and Luhansk. There is a new situation when the European Union said that it cannot now monitor if these moments are not used to enter the European Union illegally," Chalyi said.

According to him, the problem was that the European partners have changed the conditions.

"Our position was the following: sorry, but the repeating introduction of new conditions and the war as an explanation of the impossibility of Ukrainians to travel do not suit us. We defended our position and now we have a very clear knowledge that review of the implementation of Ukrainian obligations should take place until the end of 2015. Immediately after that the decision on visa-free regime for Ukrainians should be granted," he stressed.

NATO Secretary General explained why the Alliance did not supply weapons to Ukraine, 26.05.2015

NATO provides political supports and helps Ukraine reform its army. The Alliance, NATO Secretary General Jens Stoltenberg said, cannot decide on supplying weapons to Ukraine, for this is not within the competence of the Alliance member countries' governments.

According to Secretary General, if Ukraine applies for NATO membership, the application will be considered just like any other one. The decision on whether Georgia and Ukraine should be granted membership will be made by 28 NATO countries, Stoltenberg said.

According to him, no country outside the Alliance should be able to veto or prevent an independent country from accession to NATO. Stoltenberg also said it was unacceptable that a country like Russia annexed part of Ukraine and continues to destabilize its eastern part.

Moscow unveils note sent to Kiev due to detention of Russians in Donbas, 26.05.2015

The ministry said Moscow hopes that Kiev will stop manipulating the public opinion and in the near future will allow access to Yevgeny Yerofeyev and Alexander Alexandrov, who were captured in mid-May near Donetsk, in eastern Ukraine.

"Since the first day of the detention of Russian citizens Alexandrov and Yerofeyev on Ukraine's territory, the Russian diplomats both in Kiev and in Moscow have been taking active steps for the Russian consul to meet with them," the statement reads.

"There has been no result yet. The Ukrainian side is not only allowing access to the detained persons, but is also politicizing this issue, using mass media to that end," the ministry said.

United States announces $18 million in additional humanitarian assistance for Ukraine crisis, 27.05.2015

Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Population, Refugees, and Migration Simon Henshaw announced May 23 in Kyiv that the United States is providing $18 million in additional U.S. humanitarian assistance to help those affected by Russian aggression in eastern Ukraine and Crimea. With this new funding, total U.S. humanitarian assistance since the start of the crisis will reach more than $61 million.

The United States remains concerned by the growing humanitarian crisis in eastern Ukraine, particularly in areas occupied by combined Russian-separatist forces, and the limits on assistance agencies' response due to the underfunding of humanitarian appeals. More than five million people in Ukraine are in need of aid, according to the UN, including 1.2 million internally displaced persons. Single-headed households, the disabled, and the elderly are particularly vulnerable.

"By the way, we have got enough empty prison cells," he stressed.

Putin Classifies Information on Deaths of Russian Troops on Special Missions, 28.05.2015

President Vladimir Putin on Thursday declared all deaths of Russian soldiers during special operations to be classified as a state secret, a move that comes as Moscow stands accused of sending soldiers to fight in eastern Ukraine.

Putin, who has repeatedly denied any involvement of Russian troops in a pro-Russian rebellion there, amended a decree that had previously classified only deaths of servicemen during war time as secret. Asked to explain the rationale behind Putin's move, his spokesman Dmitry Peskov had no immediate comment.

Russian opposition activists released a report saying at least 220 serving Russian soldiers were killed in fighting in two hot spots in east Ukraine last summer and earlier this year.

Attempts to build Ukraine's defense industry into NATO have no chance to success — envoy, 28.05.2015

Attempts to build Ukraine's defense industry into NATO structures have no chance to success, especially after Ukraine had denounced the agreement on military cooperation with Russia, Alexander Grushko, Russia's Permanent Representative to NATO, said.

"They will get the bits of what it [Ukraine's military and defense industry] once was," Grushko said. "The fact that made Ukraine's military and defense sector strong was that it was closely linked to Russia's defense industry," the Russian diplomat explained.

Grushko expressed his doubts over a possibility of using the production capacities of the Antonov aviation concern for NATO needs. "Western countries have recently launched programmes of retooling their parks of planes. The United States, for example, is using 99% of home-made aircraft for this purpose," Russia's Permanent Representative said.

About 50,000 Ukrainian soldiers serve in ATO zone now – Poroshenko, 29.05.2015

"We have created a new, highly patriotic, well-equipped and highly efficient, modern, transparent, fair, Armed Forces of Ukraine with an extremely strong fighting spirit, which did not exist a year ago. Last year there were between 3,000 to 5,000 ready for combat missions. Simultaneously, there were from 17,000 to 23,000 soldiers in Donbas, who, of course, could not repel all attacks in the most dangerous directions. Now I can disclose a very important figure: nowadays there are about 50,000 servicemen in the ATO zone alone. This is a powerful force now, which is able to stand on the defensive," Poroshenko said.

Russia Will Respond to NATO's Missile Defense Buildup in Europe – General, 29.05.2015

"In a situation of an unrestrained expansion of NATO's missile defense shield, capable of intercepting the Russian ICBMs, Russia will, as we have repeatedly warned, find it necessary to adequately respond to this expansion," General Anatoly Ivanov said in Moscow.

In April, Russia's military chief of staff General Valery Gerasimov warned European countries planning to host installations for a US-led missile defense shield that Russia would be forced to target them. "Non-nuclear powers where missile-defense installations are being installed have become the objects of priority response," he said, referring to Poland and Romania.

Pifer: Sanctions not changing Russia's course, but force it to pay price for actions in Ukraine, 29.05.2015

"It will be important for the United States and the European Union to maintain economic sanctions against Russia, and to be ready to intensify these sanctions if the east of Ukraine faces new military actions, or if Russia does not fulfill its part of the implementation of the Minsk agreements," Pifer said.

According to Pifer, Western economic sanctions are already having a significant impact on the Russian economy. "[The sanctions] have not yet achieved the political goal of changing Russian policy, but as long as the sanctions continue to be in effect, the economic price for Russia will grow," he said.

Navalny Says Putin Will Stop At Nothing To Stay In Power, 29.05.2015

Russian opposition leader Aleksei Navalny says Vladimir Putin will stop at nothing to maintain his "monopoly on power" and accused the Russian president of launching a war against Ukraine in order to enrich himself and his inner circle.

"I really hope that he doesn't press the nuclear button right before his death and doesn't want to take the rest of humanity with him to the grave," Navalny said in a joint May 28 interview with the Russian-language services of RFE/RL and VOA.

"But I don't see any barriers or limits, or actions that he won't take in order to keep his power atop all of Russia," Navalny added.

In the wide-ranging interview, Navalny accused Putin of instigating the war in eastern Ukraine between Russian-backed separatists and Kyiv's forces that has killed more than 6,100 people since April 2014, calling the Kremlin's role in the conflict a "crime."

Poroshenko promises to sign decree on martial law in case of onslaught on the Armed Forces' positions in the Donbas, 29.05.2015

"The key position is that if the truce is violated now, the demarcation line is crossed, the attack on the Ukrainian Armed Forces is organized, a decree on introduction of martial law will be immediately signed by me and submitted to the parliament," the president said at the Year with Poroshenko TV program which was shown by the Ukrainian TV channels Thursday night on the occasion of the year of his tenure as the president.

He stressed that legislative support for martial law introduction has been considerably "improved during that short period of time." De-monopolization means setting clear principles, not fighting concrete oligarchs – Poroshenko, 29.05.2015

"Today we should de-monopolize the Ukrainian economy and ban oligarchs from influencing power via transparent and effective European mechanisms," Poroshenko said on the "Year of Poroshenko" program to mark the first year of his tenure, which aired on Ukrainian television channels on Thursday evening.

"Would oligarchs quickly retreat? No, they protect themselves and they will protect themselves. First they tried to protect themselves with private armies, [which are] threatening to the Ukrainian authorities, but they got a rap on their knuckles and they will get it more," he said.

He said oligarchs were previously convinced that they could buy any power they sought.

"What did I start doing in fighting against oligarchs? I am independent from any of them. I financed my election campaign myself and until now no kopeck of so-called "aid to the president and administration" has arrived and [such money] will not arrive," Poroshenko said.

Court Arrested Four Russians Accessory to Terrorism in Ukraine, 05.05.2015

It was said by the adviser to head of the Security Service of Ukraine Markian Lubkivskyi:

"The first case concerns two citizens of Russia, who in February of this year recruited Ukrainian citizens for participation in a terrorist organization, intentionally collected information on deployment and movement of Ukrainian military equipment in Donetsk and Zaporizhia regions," said Lubkivskyi.

According to him, this information was henceforth transmitted to "DNR" leaders and was used in combat against Ukraine's military units. "The second case refers to two Russian citizens, being a part of neutralized saboteur group (six detained, one killed), who were detained on April 23 of this year by Ukrainian servicemen," wrote the advisor to head of SSU. He recalled that the group offered resistance during detention. Its members were seized of large quantities of weapons.

Ukraine general budget reaches record surplus in 1Q15, 05.05.2015

Ukraine reported its 1Q15 general budget at a UAH 14.0 bln surplus, compared to a UAH 0.5 bln surplus in 1Q14. At the same time, the 1Q15 central budget (net of local budgets) surplus reached UAH 4.2 bln, compared to UAH 4.1 bln deficit in 1Q14. General budget revenue surged 25.0% yoy in 1Q15 on the back of a 55.4% yoy VAT increase, 58.5% yoy excise duty upsurge, 26.7% yoy growth in personal income tax collections and 2.6x jump in import tariff revenue. Also during the reported period, Ukraine received UAH 6.2 bln in a first wire from the sale of 3G licenses. At the same time, the central bank's support for the budget in 1Q15 shrunk by a third to UAH 5.5 bln from UAH 15.8 bln a year ago.

General budget spending increased only 17.2% yoy in 1Q15 compared to 26.9% yoy general spending growth targeted for the whole year.

Alexander Paraschiiy: The general budget surplus is positive, though it's too early to celebrate. The main source of the budget collections upsurge was rapid hryvnia devaluation in February. We see it as a one-off effect that will fade out in line with falling consumption. Another point of concern is the modest spending activity of local budgets. Starting the year, local authorities received more own financial resources (like 5 percent of local excise duties) to boost their coffers. At the same time, the procedures for spending those funds have not been fine-tuned yet. As a result, local authorities are just sitting on money and are waiting for clear instructions on what to do with those funds.

Breaking with the past, and Russia, Ukraine now celebrates victory in WWII on May 8, 08.05.2015

News of the defeat of Nazi Germany reached Moscow on May 9, so the Soviet Union, and latterly the former Soviet Union republics, have traditionally celebrated the victory a day after the countries of western Europe.

The new date was set by a decree of Ukrainian President Petro Poroshenko "On the celebration in 2015 of the 70th anniversary of the victory over Nazism in Europe and the 70th anniversary of the end of World War II."

The new date is not the only symbolic change marking Ukraine's break with its Soviet past. The symbol of the memory of war victims in Ukraine has now become the red poppy, as in many European countries. The St. George's Ribbon, which was the traditional symbol in the FSU, is now shunned in most of Ukraine, as it was appropriated as the symbol of the Russian-backed militants now fighting Ukrainian government forces in the east of the country.

Russia and Ukraine celebrated Victory Day's 70th anniversary very differently, 10.05.2015

Russia celebrated the 70th anniversary of the surrender of Nazi Germany during World War II in epic style on Saturday, with a massive military parade in Moscow's Red Square.

The national parade during the largest secular holiday in Russia is a chance for the country to display its military might; military vehicles and hoards of soldiers were the centerpiece of the Victory Day celebrations, which are held annually. But the 70th anniversary doesn't come along every year.

In both countries, it was a sight to be seen.

In Kiev, Ukrainian President Petro Poroshenko led a small procession of officials and diplomats to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier to honor those who died during WWII. During an address to the group, Poroshenko made a clear distinction between Ukraine marking the day and Russia's commemoration.

"May 9 will always be a red date in the Ukrainian calendar, just as these red poppies that symbolize the remembrance of the fallen," said Poroshenko. "We will never celebrate this day under the Russian scenario again, because it provides for the cold-blooded use of the Victory Day for an apology to the expansionist policy regarding neighbors aimed at keeping them in the sphere of one's influence and restoration of empire."

Kiev to Prosecute 2 Russian Soldiers Captured in Ukraine for 'Terrorist Acts', 18.05.2015

Ukraine on Monday accused two captured Russian servicemen of having killed Ukrainian troops in fighting in its east and said they would be prosecuted for "terrorist acts."

The Ukrainians seized on the capture of the two Russians, both wounded, to support their accusations of direct Russian military involvement in the separatist conflict despite a cease-fire signed in February. Russia denied any role there.

In a video posted online by the Ukrainian interior ministry, one of the prisoners gave his name as Alexander Alexandrov. He said he had been on a spying mission in Ukraine as part of a 14-member special forces group from the central Russian city of Tolyatti.

"We were discovered. I was wounded in the leg as I tried to get away. ... We've been here four or five days," he said.

The capture and possible prosecution of the two Russians and the potential embarrassment for Russia's Vladimir Putin come as the United States and its European Union allies press Moscow to fully implement the Minsk peace accords as a step to ending the crisis.

Massive rise in number of militant attacks on Ukrainian forces, fears of Russian-militant offensive grow, 04.05.2015

"The number of ceasefire violations over the past day was 95, which is almost at the level seen before the conclusion of the [peace] agreements in Minsk [on February 12.] The enemy is no longer hesitating to fire on our positions several times a day with heavy artillery and rockets, trying to provoke Anti-Terrorist Operation forces into giving the appropriate response."

The huge increase in attacks came just days after Ukrainian President Petro Poroshenko warned that the combined Russian-militant forces might launch a fresh offensive in mid-May. "We keep getting more evidence and information proving that the aggressor will commence a military offensive in the second half of May," Poroshenko said on April 30.

"[But] I don't want to frighten anyone, and you should know that the country is capable of protecting its citizens," the Ukrainian president said.

Only 20% of ATO soldiers receive status of combatants, 05.05.2015

According to Shcherbatiuk, the status of combatant has been granted to 39,000 soldiers.

"Even this figure is quite significant, because there are many military men drafted recently and they will soon be eligible for this status. In addition, the law allows the status to be given to people who were only in the ATO zone for a few hours. That means that the number of people could be quite extensive," the lawyer said.

At the same time, he pointed to the range of challenges faced by the participants of ATO and their relatives when applying for the status of combatant. He said there was the lack of a clear approach to participants in volunteer battalions - a law has been adopted but has yet to be signed by the President first."

The use of weapons directly observed was much less than in previous days. It should be noted in this context, however, that the SMM was restricted in its patrolling in Donetsk and Luhansk region during the reporting period as a result of last week's increase in violence (see SMM Spot Report 3 May 2015, www.osce.org/ukraine-smm/154786). Furthermore, the movement of the SMM was impaired due to lack of mobile telephone coverage, reportedly caused by damage of the optical fibre cable, which resulted in the SMM vehicle tracking devices becoming non-operational. According to the Joint Centre for Control and Co-ordination (JCCC) in Donetsk, 120mm mortar outgoing shelling started early in the morning at 06:50hrs from Pisky village (12km north-west of Donetsk, government-controlled) to Zhabunki village (11km north-west of Donetsk, "Donetsk People's Republic" ("DPR")-controlled).

Two Ukrainian serviceman killed, 26 wounded in past 24 hours - Ukrainian military, 08.05.2015

Two Ukrainian servicemen were killed and 26 wounded in separatist eastern territories over the past 24 hours, Ukraine's military said on Friday, as attacks continued despite a ceasefire.

In a speech to mark the 70th anniversary of the end of World War Two, Ukrainian President Petro Poroshenko said he would stick to the Minsk peace agreements that the separatists accuse him of violating.

"Questions of war and peace are as relevant today as ever before ... No matter how much my peace plan is criticised, I will not swerve from this path," he told parliament.

Violence has fallen significantly since a peace accord was signed in Minsk, Belarus, in February, but both government troops and pro-Russian rebels accuse the other side of violations and casualties are reported almost daily.

"Banned weapons are used all along the frontline ... this is evidence of deliberate attempts by the enemy to sabotage the Minsk agreements," Ukrainian military spokesman Andriy Lysenko said in a televised briefing.

Militants escalating conflict with heavy weapons from hidden arms depots in city of Donetsk, 08.05.2015

"We're currently being shelled constantly in Pisky, [a village on the front line near the city of Donetsk]," Bereza said. "Previously it was only 82mm caliber mortars, but the militants have switched to more powerful weapons now. I'm not taking about what's going on with small arms – those little skirmishes are subsiding." Under the Minsk agreement of February 12, all weapons of a caliber larger than 100mm were to have been withdrawn by both sides far out of range of the front line. However, Ukraine has reported the use by the militants of 122mm mortars, 122mm D-30 howitzers, and 122mm Grad multiple rocket launchers many times since the supposed ceasefire was to have come into effect.

It should be recalled that yesterday three fighters of 13th infantry battalion and the first tank brigade were also release from captivity.

Ukraine President Says Almost 7,000 Civilians Killed in War, 08.05.2015

Speaking before parliament, Petro Poroshenko said that more than 1,000 people remained unaccounted for. The figures mark a sharp increase from the most recent United Nations tally of around 6,100 people killed.

Addressing an assembly packed with soldiers, Poroshenko said that 1,657 Ukrainian troops had also been killed in combat — which he described as aggression from Russia.

Moscow has always denied supplying separatist rebels with either equipment or manpower, but it has been open in its diplomatic support for the separatists.

Poroshenko said Russian involvement in the war had forced Ukraine to seek to align further with the West.

"In the past 24 hours, militants shelled Ukrainian troops from 120mm-caliber mortars 20 times, from 122mm-caliber artillery systems and tanks four times, and from a 152mm-caliber artillery system one time. Ukraine's ATO - Militants massing 700 tanks for offensive in Donbas, 13.05.2015

Some experts expected an attack on May 9, celebrated as Victory Day in Russia and other former Soviet countries, but that day passed without much incident. However, the danger of possible active offensive operations is increasing, the ATO headquarters said.

Intelligence suggests that the militants have restocked their weapon and ammunition supplies, and they are targeting the positions of the Ukrainian armed forces in order to improve their skills for the active phase of hostilities.

The most threatening force of the enemy is its tank brigades, the headquarters said. The number of armored vehicles of the Russian-backed militants is already almost 700 units, it said.

"On the territory of Luhansk region and Luhansk the militants have created three powerful rear maintenance bases, where they store their armored vehicles. There is a lot of military equipment in Donetsk - the militants hide it in residential areas, industrial bases, and warehouses," National Security and Defense Council spokesman Andriy Lysenko said.

General Staff: 50,000 Russian military deployed near Ukraine's eastern border, 18.05.2015

There are 50,000 Russian troops deployed near Ukraine's eastern border.

Acting Spokesperson for the General Staff of the Ukrainian Armed Forces Vladyslav Selezniiov said this on air of Ukraine's 5 channel, 24tv.ua news website reported.

According to him, the Russian troops are divided into separate battalion task groups that can independently solve combat missions, and act as a part of other units of the Russian armed forces. Selezniiov noted that, such a build-up of forces is a psychological factor, since, in his opinion, the Kremlin would not dare to start open military invasion of the Ukraine-controlled section of the border.

Defense Ministry says Luhansk TPP is important target for militants, 19.05.2015

Luhansk thermal power plant (TPP) is an important strategic target for the militants, according to information from Russian spies detained in the town of Shastya, where the TPP is located, Valentyn Fedychev, the chief inspector of Defense Ministry main inspection has said in an interview with Ukrainian television's Channel 5.

Fedychev said the seizure of the thermal power plant would lead to a destabilization of the situation in the area, which, in his opinion, is one of the goals militants are striving to achieve.

"A very important point is that the third brigade of special forces' units were involved in tactical intelligence," Fedychev said. "This is the group that can operate up to 700 km into [enemy territory], and it was ordered to operate virtually on the frontline. This is evidence that the TPP is given a very important priority. In fact, its seizure and the discontinuation of the power supply to the northern part of the Luhansk region would destabilize the situation."

Overwhelming new evidence of prisoners being tortured and killed amid conflict, 20.05.2015

The 36-page report - Breaking Bodies: Torture and summary killings in eastern Ukraine - provides compelling evidence of frequent and widespread prisoner abuse by a broad range of captors on both sides of the conflict.

Former prisoners described being beaten until their bones broke, tortured with electric shocks, kicked, stabbed, hung from the ceiling, deprived of sleep for days, threatened with death, denied urgent medical care and subjected to mock executions.

John Dalhuisen, Europe and Central Asia Programme Director at Amnesty International, said: "In the shadow of eastern Ukraine's still smouldering conflict, our on-the-ground research shows that accounts of detainee torture are as commonplace as they are shocking. More than 30 former prisoners held by both sides gave us consistent and harrowing accounts of their captors' abuse.

Russian activists say find fresh graves of soldiers killed in Ukraine, 20.05.2015

Two activists who travelled around central Russia this week said they found fresh graves of soldiers from a special forces brigade of the army's Main Intelligence Directorate (GRU), which is based in Tambov, a city 400 kilometres (250 miles) south of Moscow.

Their investigation came as the Ukrainian authorities showed off two captured Russians they claim are serving GRU soldiers detained after being wounded in a firefight while on a scouting mission in war-torn east Ukraine.

One of the activists Vadim Korovin -- who posted pictures of the graves online -- told AFP that the burials helped show that the Russian military is carrying out "large-scale reconnaissance operations" in east Ukraine despite a tenuous truce.

One of the graves is near Tambov while the other is in the Tatarstan region on the Volga. Both show the date of death as May 5, 2015 and both have been adorned with identical wreaths from the Russian defence ministry, according to the pictures.

Captured Russian soldier: Kremlin doesn't want to admit presence of Russian army in Donbas, but it's there, 22.05.2015

According to the report, Aleksandrov said that he would like to have the status of a prisoner of war, as he went to the Donbas under military orders.

"I wish I was a prisoner of war. I like this status more than the status of a mercenary or a bandit. I was ordered to go to the Donbas, and as a soldier I had to execute it. It was a mission," he said. At the same time, commenting on the claims by the Russian authorities that no Russian soldiers are in Donbas, Aleksandrov said: "As you can see, [the Russian army] is there. It is just not good for the Kremlin to admit this."

The second captured Russian soldier, Yevgeniy Yerofeyev, has however denied that the Russian military is present in the Donbas.

Specifically, the SMM observed a small number of ceasefire violations in the area of "Donetsk People's Republic" ("DPR")-controlled Donetsk and Donetsk airport ("DPR"-controlled, 10km north-west of Donetsk). Two Russian soldiers have been charged in Ukraine with terrorism offences after being captured by Ukrainian troops earlier in the week.

The pair who admitted working for the Russian military could face up to 15 years in prison.

After interviewing the soldiers at a military hospital in Kiev, Michael Bociurkiw, spokesperson for the OSCE special monitoring mission to Ukraine said:

"Both individuals claimed that they were members of a unit of the Armed Forces of the Russian Federation and that they were on a reconnaissance mission and that they had been to Ukraine on missions before." Leader of a terrorist organization from the so-called Luhansk People's Republic ('LPR'), Commander of the "Prizrak" (Ghost) Battalion Alexey Mozgovoy and his six bodyguards have been killed by special forces of Russia's Main Intelligence Directorate, also known as GRU, according to Heraschenko.

"I've had a call from friends from Luhansk region, who have been monitoring radio communication. They claim that two hours ago a GRU special forces group eliminated well known leader of an 'LPR' terrorist organization Alexey Mozgovoy and his six bodyguards near the village of Mykhailivske outside Alchevsk," Anton Heraschenko wrote on Facebook on Saturday evening with reference to his own sources.

"The reason was the same as with another known leader of a Luhansk terrorist gang, nom de guerre "Batman" in January – his unwillingness to obey orders from Moscow," he wrote.

The water main in the town of Zolote has been damaged as a result of shelling by militants, and a large occupied territory in Luhansk region – from the town of Pervomaisk to the town of Krasny Luch – has been cut off from the water supply, Moskal's press service said.

Russian Consul to Ukraine Visits Suspected Russian Soldiers, 26.05.2015

The two Russians, Alexander Alexandrov and Yevgeny Yerofeyev, were detained on May 16 in eastern Ukraine, where pro-Russian insurgents and Ukrainian armed forces are still fighting in spite of a formal cease-fire. Ukrainian authorities and the men themselves say they are serving Russian soldiers who were on a military intelligence mission for Moscow. Russia insists both are former servicemen who had quit the army at the time of their capture.

Alexandrov and Yerofeyev were both "feeling alright," Oleg Grishin, a spokesman for the Russian embassy in Kiev, told TASS after consul Alexei Gruby visited them in a Kiev hospital. Russia's Foreign Ministry said in a statement earlier Tuesday that Russian representatives were being prevented from seeing the men, who earlier complained to reporters that their country had "forgotten and abandoned" them.

"Not only is the Ukrainian side denying access to the detained men, it is also politicizing this issue via the media," the statement said.

Lysenko: Russia digging ditches on border with Ukraine to stop militants returning in tanks, 26.05.2015

"Russia is not just building fortifications along the border with Ukraine, there have long been there about 40,000 soldiers from the regular armed forces of the Russian Federation and internal troops of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Russia," Lysenko said.

"In addition, it was decided to erect fortifications to prevent militants from coming back to the territory of the Russian Federation, in case they intended to.

"This [building of fortifications] is meant to signal clearly to those mercenaries who are now in the Donbas that if they are already there, they won't be able to leave."

Six killed in Ukraine fighting, 27.05.2015

Four pro-Russian rebels, a Ukrainian soldier and one civilian were killed in clashes that broke out over the past 24 hours in violation of a February truce deal, officials said on Tuesday. The civilian died during an artillery fire attack on the Avdiivka Coke and Chemical Plant, which sits on the outskirts of the rebels' de facto capital Donetsk. A resulting fire at the plant caused a small ammonia leak, Ukraine military spokesman Andriy Lysenko told reporters, without providing further details.

Lysenko said 12 Ukrainian soldiers were also wounded in clashes across the war zone.

The pro-Kiev governor of the separatist province of Lugansk said a soldier died when his military ambulance came under fire near the Russian border. It was not clear whether he was referring to the same serviceman as the one mentioned in Lysenko's daily update.

Rebel authorities said four of their fighters were killed and another three injured in the past day. Fighting was particularly heavy in Shyrokyne, near the strategic port city of Mariupol, military officials from both sides said.

Now convoy of Russian tanks arrive by rail at border with Ukraine days after military trucks and rocket launchers were spotted nearby, 27.05.2015

A freight train pictured carrying a convoy tanks towards the Ukrainian border looks to escalate tensions between the two sides even further.

The nine tanks arrived in the southern town of Matveev Kurgan on Monday, before being driven along the streets on Tuesday.

The arrival of the convoys will no doubt be seen as more aggression from the Russians towards their neighbours, who have been arming Ukraine's separatist rebels for months.

Matveev Kurgan is just 17 miles from the border, and just 72 miles from Donetsk, where some of the heaviest fighting of the 15-month conflict has taken place.

Russian Soldier Captured in Ukraine Will Cooperate with Investigators, 28.05.2015

One of the two Russian fighters detained recently in Ukraine has agreed to cooperate with investigators, his lawyer told Ukrainian television.

The soldier, Alexander Alexandrov, who has identified himself as a Russian army sergeant who was on active duty performing a military assignment in rebel-held eastern Ukraine, was not going to appeal his arrest by Kiev government forces, his lawyer Konstantin Kravchuk said. "My client has chosen the position of cooperating with the investigation," Kravchuk was quoted as saying, adding: "And the conditions of his stay in a VIP-room of a military hospital more than satisfy him." The other soldier, Yevgeny Yerofeyev, who said he was an army captain, has refused to cooperate and will appeal his arrest, his lawyer Oksana Sokolovskaya said, RIA Novosti reported. "All that the investigation wants to get and is trying to drag out of my client, it will not be given to them," she was quoted as saying.

Donbas terrorists flash their Russia-supplied weapons in social media, 28.05.2015

After Mozgovoi's killing, Russian mercenaries felt that something was wrong. In the so-called 'Luhansk People's Republic' "cleaners" from the Main Intelligence Directorate of the General Staff of the Armed Forces of the Russian Federation appeared. As known, a mercenary anticipating the end of his gamble is quite unstable. So "field commanders" started to eliminate their benefactors right in full public view. Even Motorola [infamous Donbas terrorist leader from Russia – ed.] didn't stand aside.

The photos demonstrate a Russian 7.62-mm Pecheneg machine gun, developed of a PK machine gun, in service with the Russian army. It has never been supplied to Ukraine and has never been in service with the Ukrainian army, another photo shows a large-caliber Kord machine gun with a 12.7x108-mm belted feed.

Kord machine gun was designed in the 90s to replace the NSV machine gun, the production of which partially ended up outside of Russia after the breakup of the Soviet Union. It was developed at Degtyarev plant in Kovrov city.

Doctors do not hospitalize Savchenko, allow her to continue participating in court session, 06.05.2015

Earlier today, an ambulance was called to Savchenko during the hearings of her case after she said she was feeling unwell and was having chest pain.

Doctors have allowed former Ukrainian pilot Nadezhda Savchenko to continue participating in Moscow Basmanny Court session on extending the term of her arrest, Judge Natalya Mushnikov said on Wednesday. Doctors said that Savchenko's heartbeat and blood pressure are normal. Earlier today, an ambulance was called to Savchenko during the hearings of her case after she said she was feeling unwell and was having chest pain.

Before the court session started, Savchenko's defense lawyers filed a request to postpone hearings on extending the former pilot's arrest terms. Lawyers said they did not have time to prepare for the hearings properly as they learned about them only yesterday.

"In my prison cell, I found out that I will have two court sessions today. That's why I did not have time to prepare," Savchenko said. However, the court refused to postpone the session.

PACE Claims Jailed Ukrainian Pilot Savchenko is Immune From Russian Prosecution, 06.05.2015

According to RAPS, attorney Ilya Novikov presented a PACE document at Moscow's Basmanny district court Wednesday stating it considered Savchenko, who was elected in absentia to the Ukrainian parliament in October and approved as a PACE delegate in January, had immunity from prosecution despite having become a parliamentarian after her alleged crime took place. Russia accuses Savchenko, Ukraine's first female military pilot, of having abetted the deaths of Russian journalists Igor Kornelyuk and Anton Voloshin, who were killed by mortar fire in eastern Ukraine in June. Savchenko, who claims she was captured by pro-Russian separatists and taken to Russia against her will last summer, has repeatedly denied any wrongdoing. The court rejected PACE's argument, claiming Savchenko's status as a delegate does not make her eligible for immunity.

Another attack on journalists investigating Interior Ministry corruption, 25.05.2015

For the second time in the space of a few weeks, investigative journalists probing corruption within the Interior Ministry have come under attack. The film crew was from the same programme whose findings recently led to top Traffic Police official Oleksandr Yershov losing his job.

The film crew from the programme 'Schemy: Corruption in Detail' run by the First National TV Channel and Radio Svoboda was attacked in Kominternivske, near Odesa.

Journalist Maria Tymoshchuk and cameraman Maxim Lenko were on a work-related task near the office of Lemodo, a firm which recently won an Interior Ministry tender to provide vehicle number plates worth 70 million UAH. The company is registered in the Odesa oblast, and up till this successful tender had never been engaged in such activities.

According to Tymoshchuk, they arrived at what proved to be the extremely modest Lemodo office. The one room was closed, and they photographed the sign on the door, and spoke with people in other offices. Somebody ran up to them shouting that they mustn't film there, that they didn't have permission, and smashed their video camera.

The journalists have filed a complaint with the police over obstruction of their legitimate journalist work (Article 171 of the Criminal Code).

The associations strongly recommend that U.S. leadership provide Ukraine with defensive lethal military equipment, which will allow the people of Ukraine to better protect them.

End of Isolation: Britain Asks Putin for Help in Middle East – German Media, 26.05.2015

Britain and Russia have announced their intention to cooperate closely to solve the Syrian crisis. Prime Minister David Cameron and Vladimir Putin have agreed to a meeting between senior security advisers of both countries, the newspaper reported, referring to a statement of the British government.

The activities of the Islamic State and the Syrian civil war were the main topic of the half-hour phone call, the government's spokeswoman said.

However, according to the newspaper, both countries do not want to reveal the turnaround in their relations too quickly. Thus, they are conducting military maneuvers that recall the days of the Cold War.

The US and other Western countries started major military maneuvers with around 100 warplanes in Scandinavia near the border with Russia on Monday. The exercise in northern Norway, Sweden and Finland is presumably aimed at enhancing the military cooperation between America and the EU.

EU criticises 'unjustified' Russian travel blacklist, 31.05.2015

Russia has imposed an entry ban on 89 European politicians and military leaders, according to a list seen by Reuters, a move that has angered Europe and worsened its standoff with the West over Moscow's role in the Ukraine conflict.

A spokeswoman for EU foreign affairs said that in recent months Russia had denied entry to a number of EU politicians. "We consider this measure as totally arbitrary and unjustified, especially in the absence of any further clarification and transparency," she said.

A spokeswoman for Britain's Foreign Office said there was no justification for the travel ban.

"If Russia's intention is to put pressure on the EU to ease sanctions then this is not the way to do it," she said. A Russian Foreign Ministry official confirmed to Russian media that lists of banned individuals had been sent to EU states but declined to comment on the individuals themselves.
