Introduction

November 2014 managed to bring neither desired peace nor economic stability to Ukraine. The month started with election in the so-called LNR and DNR, which have almost ruined all Minsk agreements and which were not recognized by the entire civilized world. Even Russian Federation used the term “respect” not “recognition” in respect to these elections. Donetsk airport which is under control of the Ukrainian military is severely shelled by missiles every day. Due to their attacks civilians are murdered. Ukraine was losing its defenders almost every day. In addition to that according to the NSDC data 400 militaries are missing, another 399 are being held hostage; for the duration of the ATO, 4,079 military were injured. Russian humanitarian convoys continued to delivery support to anti-terrorist operation zone. Ukrposhta and state energy companies stop activity in anti-terrorist operation zone. From mid-April to 18 November, at least 4,317 people were killed and 9,921 wounded in the conflict-affected area of eastern Ukraine. According to the UN report 957 people, including 838 men and 119 women, have been killed in eastern Ukraine during the ceasefire that began on September 6 as of November 18. The forex rate of the Ukrainian hryvnia on the interbank forex market on November 10 slid to 16.10 UAH per dollar, having hit new record lows. Prices on utilities significantly went up. Coalition Agreement has been signed. Representatives of the parties Petro Poroshenko Bloc, People’s Front, Samopomich Union, the Radical Party of Liashko and Batkivschyna have signed a coalition agreement on the first anniversary of Maidan. The future coalition plans "to draw up and make amendments to Ukraine's laws on foundations of domestic and foreign policy and foundations of national security, envisioning, inter alia, the cancellation of Ukraine's non-aligned status, the resumption of a political course toward integration into the Euro-Atlantic security space, and acquisition of North-Atlantic Treaty Organization membership". The agreement also envisages a public administration reform and the passage of legislation regulating the president's impeachment procedure. The agreement stipulates that parliamentarians who voted for the January 16 package of bills and members of the Opposition Bloc cannot join the coalition.

New Parliament started its work on November 27.

The first festive meeting was attended by Ukrainian President Petro Poroshenko, as well as former Presidents Leonid Kravchuk, Leonid Kuchma and Viktor Yushchenko.

The newly elected MPs simultaneously took the oath of office. Verkhovna Rada Chairman Oleksandr Turchynov has resigned as parliament speaker. Volodymyr Hroisman took up his post. He announced the set up of "coalition in a Ukrainian European parliament by a constitutional majority of 302 MPs".

Incumbent Ukrainian Prime Minister Arseniy Yatseniuk has again been elected head of government. New government should be formed in the beginning of December.

Newly elected Parliament was recognized by Russian Federation.

There are constant contacts between Russian and Ukrainian Presidents that gives hope that peace would come to Ukraine.

Pseudo-elections in Donbas to have serious consequences for Russia - Lithuanian Foreign Ministry, 03.11.2014

KYIV, November 3 /Ukrinform/. The Lithuanian Foreign Ministry strongly condemns illegitimate "elections" held in some parts of Ukraine's Donetsk and Luhansk regions by illegal armed groups on November 2. This so-called "vote" will have serious consequences for Russia's future relations with the international community.

"The vote organized by the leaders of so-called 'Donetsk and Luhansk People's Republics' escalates the conflict in the east of Ukraine and will have severe repercussions for Russia's relations with the international community. Further invasion by the Russian army into Ukraine and continuous violation of the cease-fire by the illegal armed groups raise particular concern," reads the statement.

According to the statement, these acts, directly supported by Russia, represent a gross violation of Ukraine's territorial integrity, contradict international law, the laws of Ukraine and the September 5 Minsk agreement, and also do not allow for a free expression of political will by the citizens in Ukraine's Donetsk and Luhansk regions.

"The 'local authorities' formed on the basis of such farce 'elections' will have no democratic legitimacy," the Lithuanian Foreign Ministry said.

Biometric passports will be issued to Ukrainians from January 1 - MFA, 03.11.2014

KYIV, November 3 /Ukrinform/. The Ukrainian authority faces a task of arranging serial production of biometric passports from January 1, 2015.

The only flaw that must be corrected towards a visa-free regime with the EU is the issue of biometric passports.

"In September, there were four EU missions in Ukraine on the assessment of a progress in this sphere: one - on control over the borders, another - on the issue of security of documents, and another two - on asylum and migration. I should confirm that we have rather positive results. The only issue is that serial production of biometric passports is not arranged. This is a certain flaw, which we plan to remove in the nearest future," Deputy Foreign Minister Lana Zerkal said.

'Putin can't support Donbas,' says Nemtsov, 07.11.2014

Russia does not have enough money to support the four million residents of Ukraine's Donbas, according to Boris Nemtsov, a leader of the Russian opposition movement.

"[Russian President Vladimir] Putin's plan entitled 'Novorossyia' has gone wrong, because Russia does not have enough money to support the pensioners and public sector workers in the east of Ukraine," Nemtsov wrote on his page on Facebook.

"Putin defiantly refused to meet with the leaders of the DPR and LPR (Donetsk and Luhansk Peoples' Republics) not only because he is careful of the possibility of new sanctions, but also because they have nothing to discuss. There's no money to support four million people."

Nemtsov also said Putin was continuing to send Russian troops to Donetsk, supplying weapons and arranging provocations. But Russia is not ready to financially support a vast region, Nemtsov said.

"What remains for [DPR leader Oleksandr] Zakharchenko and Co.? The mines are flooded, no work, no money. Just war," Nemtsov said.

Moscow says it 'respects' but does not 'recognize' Donbas elections, 07.11.2014

In a sign that Russia might be backing down slightly on the issue of its recognition of the elections held by insurgents in Ukraine's Donbas, the Kremlin on Friday said it "respected" but did not "recognize" last Sunday's poll.

"The official position of Russia is expressed in a short, but meaningful Foreign Ministry statement on the results of the election - it uses the word 'respect,'" Putin aide Yury Ushakov said of Moscow's official position.

Asked about whether it was possible to equate the terms "respect" and "recognize" with regard to the elections in the self-proclaimed republics, Ushakov said, "these are different words." "The word 'respect' was especially chosen."

According to the representatives of the mission, in both cases, the men in uniform in the trucks were not observed. Cars followed the convoys, heading west.

Over the last two days OSCE observers have seen several convoys of military equipment near Donetsk. On November 8 the mission observed a convoy of tanks, APCs, trucks and tank trucks 25 km away from Donetsk, in Makiyivka.

Defense Ministry: 80% of OSCE employees in Mariupol - Russians, among them FSB workers, 11.11.2014

KYIV, November 11 /Ukrinform/. 80% of OSCE employees, working in the area of Mariupol, Donetsk region, are citizens of the Russian Federation.

Adviser to the Minister of Defense for the exchange of prisoners Vasyl Budyk said on TV air, referring to the OSCE mission officer in the ATO area.

"Usually, when we get somewhere, we prepare routes, stop in some places, accommodate our group, and the accompanying persons, with whom I go. We were accommodated in the hotel "Reikartz," this is a three-star hotel in Mariupol. It so happened that we had been literally on the one floor with the so-called OSCE mission. Due to the fact that I am a citizen of Georgia, I met with one of the officers of the mission, a Georgian by birth, who has been in this mission. I understand that now I set him up, but I cannot help saying this. He said a phrase that 80% of all employees working in the OSCE mission in the sector "M" in Mariupol are Russians," Budyk said, quoted by ZN.UA.

Head of Naftogaz: Ukraine supplying Donbas militants gas for free, 11.11.2014

Ukraine is still supplying expensive imported Russian gas to the areas of the country that have been seized by militants, but gets no payment in return, the head of Naftogaz Ukrainy has said in an interview with German broadcaster Deutsche Welle.

A transcript of the interview with Naftogaz head Andriy Kobolev has been posted on the official Web site of Ukraine's national oil and gas company.

"These areas are now under control of, in the politically correct term, armed men. They do not pay us anything, although we continue supplying gas to these areas," Kobolev said.

He said Naftogaz and Ukraine are therefore suffering from a situation in which they have to buy gas from Russia at significantly higher than market prices and then supply it free of charge to those areas which are under the "protection" of the Russian Federation.

"This is very similar to the situation in Transnistria - gas is being consumed in the breakaway republic, with the payments carried out by the central government in Moldova. We believe that such situation is, at least, incorrect, and it requires some solution," Kobolev said.

Lubkivskiy gave the example of the recent terrorist attacks on a checkpoint in Mariupol and the Kharkiv pub The Wall.

OSCE says it can't work in Donbas, 12.11.2014

OSCE Secretary General Lamberto Zannier admitted on Wednesday that the escalation of the situation in the east of Ukraine and failure of the Minsk agreements was making it impossible for his organization's observer mission to fulfill its mandate in the Donbas.

"What we see is concerning, and there are a number of reasons for this concern," Zannier told journalists in Brussels, according to an UNIAN correspondent.

"First of all, given that our primary task was to help de-escalate the conflict, we are concerned because there really is an escalation. We've seen military equipment entering the region during a ceasefire."

Zannier said the observer mission records all violations, but is faced with restrictions on its work.

"When we return to Donetsk and Luhansk, we have no freedom of movement. We would like to get to the border but de facto we do not have that freedom. We ask all parties to the Minsk Agreement to execute the agreements. We cannot help if they do not create the conditions for this. This is one of the problems."

The OSCE secretary general said there are signs that "there may be more open confrontation."

UN Security Council warns of possibility of full-scale fighting in east Ukraine, 13.11.2014

KYIV, November 13 /Ukrinform/. The possibility of the full-scale resumption of hostilities in the parts of eastern Ukraine seized by pro-Russian separatists was discussed at an urgent meeting of the UN Security Council on the situation in Ukraine on Wednesday, Radio Liberty has reported.

In particular, UN Assistant Secretary-General Jens Anders Toyberg-Frandzen, in his report on the situation in Ukraine, said that the upsurge in fighting came amidst regular reports from the OSCE of an influx of large convoys of heavy weapons, tanks and troops flowing into rebel-held areas and stressed that a failure to secure the Russian-Ukrainian border was a factor that continues to impede the path to peace.

OSCE representative Heidi Tagliavini recalled the illegality of the so-called "elections" staged by separatists on November 2, as well as other flagrant violations of the Minsk agreements, including the ongoing fighting.

Serheyev: Russia deployed 200 tanks and 190 aircraft on border with Ukraine, 13.11.2014

KYIV, November 13 /Ukrinform/. Russia has deployed 200 tanks, 1,600 vehicles, 640 artillery units, 191 aircraft and 121 combat helicopters on the border with Ukraine.

Ukraine's envoy to the UN Yuriy Serheyev said this at an urgent meeting of the UN Security Council, ukr.media reported.

Instead of complying with the Minsk agreements, militants, supported by Russian regular troops, continued to shell Ukrainian military and civilian targets. Since the beginning of the ceasefire (September 5) militants have violated the ceasefire over 2,700 times.

"As many as 131 Ukrainian servicemen were killed, over 500 were wounded, and 65 civilians were killed," Serheyev said.

He also pointed to Russia's attempt to create a land corridor to the occupied Crimea and concentrate Russian troops on Ukrainian territory.

"An illegal Russian convoy with heavy weapons is spotted almost every day. Russia's representative today said that his government does not provide any military support to separatists in Ukraine. This means that someone else, not the state, which has missiles, tanks and guns, supplies them to illegal formations in Ukraine. Someone else in Russia attacks planes and helicopters and violates our airspace," the diplomat said.

Klimkin: Government not planning to fight to win back Donbas, looking for political solution, 14.11.2014

The Ukrainian government has no plans for any military operations to regain control of the territories controlled by Russian-backed militants, and is searching for a political solution to this conflict, Ukrainian Foreign Minister Pavlo Klimkin has said in an interview with German newspaper Rheinische Post.

"Ukraine has stopped fighting for the Ukrainian regions in the east of the country controlled by pro-Russian separatists," Klimkin said.

"Such a military operation would also affect the civilian population, our Ukrainian citizens," he told the newspaper.

"The Ukrainian government intends to observe the ceasefire and continues to seek a political solution to the conflict," Klimkin said.

"If the separatists, supported by the Russian Federation, begin again to attack the positions of the Ukrainian soldiers, they will get a fitting rebuff by the Ukrainian army, as its fighting capacity has substantially increased recently."

"Today, thousands of Ukrainian soldiers can fight with the enemy, and they have already proven it," he added.

NATO chief says he sees no military solution to Donbas conflict, 14.11.2014

There is no military solution to the conflict in eastern Ukraine, NATO Secretary General Jens Stoltenberg has said in an interview published on Friday by Italian newspaper Corriere della Sera.

"Ukraine is not a member of NATO, and we are convinced that this conflict cannot be resolved by military means," Stoltenberg told the newspaper.

"We appeal to Russia with the requirement that it respect the Ukrainian border and not render aid to the separatists, as this endangers the ceasefire agreement. NATO supports and will continue to support the full sovereignty and territorial integrity of the country, which form the basis of the Minsk Protocol."

Stoltenberg called for all sides to strictly observe the Minsk agreement.

"It's a big mistake to think that if you lose, I win, or vice versa. But if a political solution is found, one respecting the interests of all parties, we will all win from it."

Stoltenberg said that "over the last year Moscow has tripled its military activity."

Mogherini says sanctions against Russia not an objective now, 17.11.2014

KYIV, November 17 /Ukrinform/. The European Union thinks that sanctions against Russia are currently not an objective and it is necessary to focus on reforms in Ukraine.

EU High Representative for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy Federica Mogherini said this before a meeting of the EU Foreign Affairs Council in Brussels on Monday, Ukrinform's correspondent reported.

"Sanctions themselves are not a target, are not an objective. They can be an instrument if they come together with other measures. I think that it's time that the European Union and the ministers concentrate on the other issues that we have to build for having a complete strategy. And that means, on the one hand, asking Ukrainians to commit to reforms, and on the other hand, finding the ways to assist them in holding these reforms," Mogherini said.

If Ukraine destroys Russian military convoy, it will unleash full-scale war - Chaly, 17.11.2014

KYIV, November 18 /Ukrinform/. Ukrainian military do not launch a powerful rocket attack on columns of Russian military equipment that cross the terrorist-controlled border, because it might provoke a full-scale war with Russia, which will use all its military might.

Deputy Head of Ukraine's Presidential Administration Valeriy Chaly said this during the Freedom of Speech program on the ICTV television channel, Ukrinform reported.

"As a diplomat, I think that our task, as we implement it, is to diplomatically avoid a full-scale war in Central Europe. If such a strike is directly delivered, this will unleash a war with the use of aircraft, etc," he said, when asked why the Ukrainian Armed Forces do not launch a rocket attack, including with the use of a Tochka-U tactical missile, on military columns from Russia. Chaly said that such a move would have turned the conflict into "a completely different scale." In addition, international support for Ukraine, particularly in Europe, could have suffered some losses, he added.

Putin afraid of 'color revolutions' in Russia, 20.11.2014

KYIV, November 20 /Ukrinform/. Russian President Vladimir Putin has described "color revolutions" in some countries as a lesson and warning for Russia and urged to counteract their appearance in Russia by all means.

"In the present-day world, extremism is being used very often as a tool of geopolitics and redrawing spheres of influence. We can see the tragic consequences the wave of so-called 'color revolutions' has led to and what upheavals were and are being experienced by the countries that have gone through irresponsible experiments of hidden, and at times gross, or 'crashing' as we say here, outside meddling in their life. For us it is a lesson and warning, and we must do necessary to prevent something similar from ever happening in Russia," Putin said.

Poroshenko: Genocide against Ukrainian people will not be repeated, 22.11.2014

Ukrainian President Petro Poroshenko has compared the Holodomor of 1932-1933 with an undeclared war against Ukraine in 2014 calling it a continuation of the imperial genocide against the Ukrainian people.

"Today, having already had the experience of the Patriotic War of 2014 for our independence with an enemy that has invaded our land, we have a different look on the events of 1932-1933. Then, there also was a real and undeclared war against Ukraine, which was conducted according to all the rules of the colonial imperial operations using special squads and internal troops against unarmed villagers, as the Communist Party did," he said during the events to commemorate the Holodomor on Saturday at the National Memorial to the victims of holodomors in Ukraine.

According to the president, "the successors of Stalin, Kaganovich, and Postyshev have not disappeared in the darkness of history." "They rule the bloody ball in the temporarily occupied territories of the so-called LPR and DPR, where they repeated the criminal experiments of the time of holodomors," the president stressed.

Poroshenko said that "the enemy is trying to divide us again." "Today more than ever we need unity. And I believe that we can learn the lessons of history. They should not hope to conquer Ukraine again. We have become stronger, wiser and we will fight back. Never give up, never stop fighting!" he said.

Nuland: It won't be easy for Ukraine to join NATO, 26.11.2014

Ukraine will not find it easy to join NATO, even if it decides to do so, Assistant Secretary of State for European and Eurasian Affairs at the U.S. State Department Victoria Nuland has said.

"You see, we believe that all countries of the Euro-Atlantic region, including Russia, have the right to discuss with NATO the prospects for closer cooperation with Ukraine, if its leadership takes the appropriate decision," Nuland said in an interview with Konstantin Beniumov, the Washington correspondent of Russian news Web site Medusa.

"Whether the country is ready to take on the responsibility associated with the membership of the alliance is another question. It is a very long process for Central European states, which requires significant changes," Nuland said.

"We have not discussed the prospects of joining NATO neither with the current Ukrainian government nor the people of Ukraine. For a long period of time, Ukrainians preferred to keep the status of a non-aligned country. We are not ready to close off the prospects of joining NATO to Ukraine, but if Ukraine takes this decision, it will be very difficult to realize," Nuland said.

Ukraine marks first anniversary of Euromaidan protests, 21.11.2014

KYIV, November 21 /Ukrinform/. Euromaidan protests began in Ukraine on November 21, 2013, which are now called the Revolution of Dignity.

On that day, journalists and people not indifferent to the fate of the country gathered on Independence Square (Maidan Nezalezhnosti) in Kyiv to protest against the refusal by the government led by Prime Minister Mykola Azarov to sign an Association Agreement with the European Union.

Later, multi-thousand rallies spread throughout Ukraine and escalated into an armed confrontation between the government and citizens. More than a hundred people were killed in Kyiv's riots.

After a series of demands by protesters and the opposition to the government caused by bloody clashes on February 18-20, 2014, security forces began to slowly retreat. Many MPs started leaving the Party of Regions faction in the Verkhovna Rada. This resulted in the resumption of the work of the parliament, which unanimously approved a number of fateful decisions for the country that stopped the confrontation.

"It was a very difficult test for Ukraine... I, as president of Ukraine, have only to document it and sign a decree on the Day of Dignity and Freedom, which Ukrainians will now and forever mark on November 21... Ukraine is a territory of dignity and freedom," Poroshenko said.

Tymchuk: Putin considering open aggression, strike groups in Donbas ready to attack, 07.11.2014

Russian President Vladimir Putin may be considering the start of open hostilities against Ukraine, military blogger Dmytro Tymchuk wrote on Facebook on Friday.

"The fact that the Russians are moving [equipment] to the border, including tactical missile systems, suggests that Putin is considering the option of open aggression against Ukraine, quite obviously, under the guise of 'protecting the local population' of the Donbas, who expressed their will in the elections in the Donetsk and Luhansk Peoples' Republics," he said. "However, this scenario is clearly not the primary one, and these preparation are more likely a 'safety net,' which also puts pressure on Kyiv in order to prevent it starting active offensive operations against the terrorists."

Tymchuk said an open attack by Russia could not be excluded, but that it would most likely happen only in the event of the insurgents attacking Ukrainian forces, but being beaten, and there then being successful offensives in response by Ukrainian forces.

Russia's Igor Strelkov: I Am Responsible for War in Eastern Ukraine, 21.11.2014

Russian national Igor Strelkov, a former commander of pro-Moscow separatists in eastern Ukraine, has claimed personal responsibility for unleashing the conflict in which 4,300 people have been killed since April.

"I was the one who pulled the firing trigger of this war... " If our unit hadn't crossed the border, in the end everything would have fizzled out, like in Kharkiv, like in Odessa. There would have been several dozen killed, burned, detained. Girkin was quoted as saying: "Initially I assumed that the Crimea scenario would be repeated: Russia would enter... Nobody intended to fight for the Luhansk and Donetsk republics". At the start of this summer, 90% of rebel forces were made up of local residents, Strelkov said. However, by early August, Russian servicemen supposedly on "vacation" from the army had begun to arrive. The assault on the Black Sea town of Mariupol was conducted mostly by the Russian military "vacationers." Strelkov said that when he understood "that Russia was not going to take us in — I associated myself with the resistance — for us that decision was a shock." While Moscow has repeatedly denied supplying the rebels with weaponry and manpower, Strelkov said the assistance offered to rebels remained significant.
